EARLY CANYON PASTOR DIES AT HOME HERE

REV. T. F. ROBESON WAS THE FOUNDER OF M. E. CHURCH.

Career of Minister Remarkable for Its Length and Its Wide Scope of Service in Texas.

The Rev. T. F. Robeson, founder of the First Methodist Church of Canyon, died at his home here last Friday. The pioneer minister was nearing his ninetieth birthday. The death of Mr. Robeson marked the rapid closing of that small circle of ministers who came to Texas from the old South, and removed one of the few remaining men who had been circuit riders.

Mr. Robeson had lived in Texas since 1886, and in the Panhandle territory since 1887. During his years of active ministry he was pastor of practically every existing church in this section.

Funeral services were held last Saturday at the new Methodist Church—a building striking in its contrast to the poverty of property which handicapped the church at the time of its organization. Hundreds of Canyon and Panhandle-Plains residents attended the funeral, evidencing the esteem in which Mr. Robeson was held throughout the section. The body was buried in Dreamland cemetery.

Born in the hills of Buncombe County, North Carolina in 1839, Mr. Robeson early found himself a part of the westward movement, then a participant in the Civil war, then on the move to the west again. At every stopping place his work was constructive. Although he went to school less than a year, he became well educated through his own efforts. In Tennessee he was associated for three years with George Stewart who afterward gave his church such outstanding service. Stewart gave the credit for his work to Robeson, and had recently visited here with his friend.

From Cooke County, Robeson removed in 1887 to Hemphill County. Soon he left Hemphill, for there were no schools, and he vowed that "cattle or no cattle, I am not going to bow down to ignorance for my children." He moved to Childress County.

Robeson's kindness and earnestness of purpose can be seen in the incident of the cowboy who came to the dugout in which the preacher lived. He reported that his wife was an invalid but that she would like to hear preaching. Robeson said, "Tell your wife I will come and preach to her. You may call the neighbors in if you want to, but this sermon is going to be for your sick wife." Driving many miles over the sandhills he came to the dugout home and found there twelve neighbors who had come many miles to hear "preaching."

Robeson organized two churches, the one here, and the Methodist church of Hereford, and conducted the first worship in many tiny cow towns. When he came to Canyon, there were eight or ten families and three saloons. Due to his fearless leadership, the saloons were voted out three years after his arrival.

The church at Bovina, famed supply depot for the great X I T ranch was organized in an eating house. The men sat around on the floor, the few chairs being given to the women. At Vega, now the county seat of Oldham County, at Tulia, Tevico, Hereford, Dimmitt and practically every little settlement west of the New Mexico line and south to Lubbock, Robeson preached and helped organize churches.

Rev. G. S. Hardy, now of Chillicothe, was presiding elder in those early days. He declares that Robeson could have been one of the great leaders of Southern Methodism, but that he preferred preparing others for the great tasks while he carried on the hard labor of the circuit rider. He felt himself the instrument of God. "God leads to grace the pioneers. Who walk each hour with danger; Knows these grim men for his peers;

Gives his bread to the stranger—Doing all that a neighbor can, God rides still a weary man. . . . God—in the circuit rider's breast—Once more God built a world—Our West. . . . Even in his last days this old circuit rider saw the problems of a rapidly developing section and of the entire country with surprising clarity and insight. His long, lonely rides, with saddle bags flopping at his sides, and with sandstorms whipping into his face, (Continued on last page)

Fire Destroys Tooth Stain Experiment at College Early Today

Fire early today destroyed a rat and guinea pig culture station at the college which has been used for more than two years by Dr. C. A. Pierle in his investigation of brown tooth stain.

The station was completely wiped out, with the loss of one small building valued at about $250, and all animals and experiment paraphernalia. Data for the last nine months of the experiment was lost in the fire, according to Dr. Pierle, and cannot be replaced.

The station was located north of the power house. The American Dental Association and co-operating organizations, including the Canyon Chamber of Commerce, have been co-operating with Dr. Pierle, who is head of the department of Chemistry, in his experiments.

Causes of brown tooth stain, common to natives in many sections of the state and nation, were the objective of the experiment. Officers of the association often had expressed satisfaction at the progress of the experimentation, and it was hoped that the culture destroyed this morning would be one of the most productive of results out of the entire series.

Whether the station will be replaced immediately was problematical, but it was understood that the experiments will be resumed as soon as possible.

Underpass Contract Provides Only For Grading Road Unit

Contracts let by the state highway commission last week for the construction of an underpass on the Canyon-Amarillo highway in the edge of the city, provides only for grading and drainage structure on that section of the road from Fourth Avenue to the railroad, according to County Engineer A. E. Dyatt.

The state probably will advertise for bids for paving this strip, along with the remainder of the road, during February. This particular section of the road, which is within the city limits, will be surfaced with an 18-foot slab, according to plans on file here, and the city will be required to construct curb and gutters and paving of any additional width desired. Mr. Dyatt said.

Thompson Opens New Tractor Repair Department

Thompson Hardware Company added another department to its extensive business here last week, when a tractor service shop was opened in the rear of the building on 4th avenue occupied by the Texas Utilities Company.

The new shop is intended to increase the service the company already has been giving on the tractors it sells, according to C. L. Thompson, secretary of the company. Complete work-shop equipment has been installed, and a large stock of repairs and parts for the machines has been moved to the building.

Jay Prichard will be the foreman in charge of the new department.

Opening of the tractor service department was one of the first steps in an extension and reorganization program contemplated by the company, it was understood. Complete details, however, were not available, Mr. Thompson said.

Denver Post Joins Other Dailies in Praising 'Old Texas'

T. C. Thompson has received from the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, one of the largest smelting and manufacturing companies of the Middle West, a copy of an editorial praising Texas which was carried in the Denver Post.

The Post's comment, while especially appreciated by people of this section, is just an example of the attention Texas is getting from other states of the Union.

The editorial follows: Do you know that Texas is one of our very best neighbors and friends—this wonderful state to our south with about a thousand miles of sea coast?

Do you know that during the summer three-fifths of our tourists to Colorado—that's over half—are from Texas?

DANIEL BAKER LOSES TO W. T. IN HARD TILT

BOTH TEAMS HIT BY PERSONAL FOUL RULINGS.

Red Keith Tops Scoring With 12 Points—M. Chambers Follows Close Behind With 11.

The West Texas Buffaloes today were one game nearer their third consecutive T. I. A. A. championship, after disposing of the strong Daniel Baker Hill Billies last night by a score of 39 to 30.

The restraining arm of Referee Pete Cawthon worked relentlessly last night, and both teams finished the game with lineups changed drastically by enforced substitutions.

The teams meet again tonight at 8 o'clock.

Coach S. D. Burton, wearing his three-stripe championship sweater, walked down before his reserve bench often during the game to replace men who were forced to leave the game because of personal fouls. Burton's substitutes were no disappointment, carrying the game to the Hillbillies and, until the last few minutes of play, keeping a comfortable margin ahead.

The Hillbillies fared no better, losing their stars before the second half was well underway. The Goats made a total of 20 personal fouls, scored eighteen of their points by free throws and rounded out their total of 30 by 6 field goals.

The Buffaloes made 27 personal fouls, scored 13 points by free throws, and scored 13 field goals to make their total of 39.

Red Keith, galloping Buffalo forward, was high point man of the game with 12 points. M. Chambers of the Hillbillies worked his total up to 11 by long shots and was going strong when the game ended.

Reeves, who was substituted for Crump, became sensational upon occasion. His four field goals were made under difficulty and at times when the Buffalo teamwork was clicking in a way to thrill the fans.

The regular order of Coach Burton's team was broken early when Gerald, following Miller, his special assignment, went out by the personal foul route. Crump and Lowes followed close behind, and, with a lead of 9 points, the game was checked to capable substitutes. Hazlewood, who replaced Gerald, went out late in the game.

Elvis Ward, pride of the Buffalo defense, was outstanding for his team. Ward scored 6 points and played the floor in fine fashion. His was the most consistent work of the evening.

A packed house watched the game last night. Scores of ex-students and many other out-of-town visitors watched the two premier teams of the association battle for the T. I. A. A. lead. The game tonight will be the only other (Continued on last page)

Youths Pay Fines of $26.50 Each for Wrecking Rink Tent

Complaints were filed against nine Canyon youths this week as a result of the collapse of a tent covering a portable skating rink which has been operating here for the last month. Supporting guy ropes about the tent were cut, according to the complaints, and $300 damage done to the property.

Four of the youths paid fines and court costs amounting to about $26.50 each. Others of the group have not been found, according to officers, and still others are yet to be arraigned.

Minimum sentences were assessed in each case. The law permits fines up to $1,000 for the offense, according to Judge B. F. Fronbarger, in whose court the cases were tried.

No attempt was made by owners of the rink to repair the tent and re-open here. The equipment was moved from Canyon early this week.

County officials requested that name of the youths named in the complaints be withheld.

Tax Collections Swelled by Last-Minute Payments

Although about 400 people paid property taxes during the last week, the office of John Fry, tax collector, was crowded today by property owners who sought to avoid penalties.

A 10 per cent penalty will be added after midnight tonight to all taxes remaining unpaid.

Records of the tax collectors' office, including those of the branch office in Amarillo, showed late Wednesday that 1513 people have paid property taxes this year. More than 500 other people have yet to pay their tax, according to last year's records.

Poll taxes had been paid Wednesday by 1037 people and 1290 automobiles had been registered.

WARWICK ON COMMITTEE STUDYING PENAL SYSTEM

Representative C. W. Warwick writes from Austin that he has just returned from a tour of the penal system of the state in company with other members of a house committee appointed for the purpose. The trip was made in connection with agitation to remove units of the system and to make other changes.

Mr. Warwick is very well pleased with the progress of the new legislature, he writes, and is becoming more adjusted to the rapid change from newspaper publishing to legislative duties.

The Warwicks possibly will return to Canyon early in March, since indications are that a special session of the legislature will be called to care for appropriations.

Billie McClure, Homer Pemberton, and Van Boston of Friona were in Canyon Wednesday night.

NEW FEATURES

The Canyon News this week adds two new features for the entertainment and information of its readers.

E. Phillips Oppenheim's new story, "The Desperate Lover,"—laid in the warm loveliness of cosmopolitan Palermo, and formed of the strong passion of Latin love as it clashes with the sterling manhood of an English gentleman—begins today.

The other new feature—the informational one—is the addition of the weekly survey of the Texas Legislature by Gordon K. Shearer and other United Press correspondents stationed at the statehouse. This valuable feature is furnished News readers through the courtesy of the United Press, world-wide news organization. Shearer, the correspondent at Austin, traveled throughout the United States during the presidential campaign with Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic vice-presidential candidate and is excellently equipped to report legislative movements in the light of their effect on Texas and on inter-state affairs.

The News would appreciate knowing of the reaction of its readers to these new features.

Court Term Ends With Near Record for Light Docket

District court closed its winter term here last Friday after disposing of an exceptionally light docket.

Only one indictment was returned by the grand jury during the last week of the session. J. A. Allen of Amarillo, arrested by Sheriff John Fry during a liquor raid in south Amarillo, was indicted.

Allen already is under bond, but search for him this week was fruitless, Mr. Fry said.

The outstanding criminal trial of the term was that of O. J. Podzemny of Umbarger, who was charged with violations of the prohibition laws. A jury disagreed in the first trial and a second returned a verdict of acquittal. Another count against Podzemny will be tried at the next term of court, and still another indictment was dismissed.

Civil suits likewise were exceptionally light, and most of them were reported to the court as settled when called for trial.

HELEN HAMILTON DIES

Friends of Rev. W. E. Hamilton, former pastor of the Canyon Methodist Church, were grieved to learn of the death of his two-year-old daughter, Helen, last Thursday. She had been sick for several weeks with a throat trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Terry and son, Mrs. W. E. Heizer and Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Heizer visited with relatives in Claude last Sunday.

College Faculty in Demand as Speakers Through Panhandle

Demand for members of the faculty of the West Texas State Teachers College as speakers for organizations and special occasions continues throughout the Panhandle, a check made by Mrs. T. V. Reeves of the Bureau of Public Service shows.

In the immediate future, persons from the College will dedicate new school buildings in Olton and Panhandle.

J. A. Hill, president of the College will make the principal address at the dedication of the new school building at Panhandle, January 31.

Law Sone, a graduate of the College is superintendent of the Panhandle system. The building which has just been completed is one of the best in this region.

Professor Frank R. Phillips of the Agriculture department addressed the Kiwanis Club and the high school student body at Tulia Tuesday, and Prof. F. E. Savage and Mrs. T. M. Montfort spoke to the high school students of Hereford on the same day.

D. A. Shirley, registrar of the College, will speak at the dedication of the Olton high school building which has just been completed under the leadership of Superintendent H. P. Webb.

Field service is a regular part of the duties of the members of the faculty of the College, according to administrative authorities.

T. C. Thompson and Wade Reid Speak to Rotarians Tuesday

T. C. Thompson, president of the Thompson Hardware Company, and Wade Reid of Fort Davis, Tex., were speakers on the luncheon program of the Canyon Rotary Club last Tuesday.

Mr. Thompson gave a "classification talk," telling of the ideals and the usefulness of the business of retailing hardware and implements. The use of hardware and implements is universal, he said, and evidences of the vocation everywhere, in agriculture, in manufacturing, in building, and even on the high seas.

The retailer of hardware and implements is engaged in something besides a mere business, and renders a distinct class of service to the public, Mr. Thompson said. This type of retailer must "study constantly to keep abreast of the needs of the moment," in the giving of his service," he said.

"It takes a life of constant study without a divided mind to give good service, and the retailing of hardware and implements is not merely a business but a vocation of service to all mankind," he said. Wade Reid, of Fort Davis, told the Rotarians of the development of the high plateau country in which Fort Davis, Alpine, Marfa, and Fort Stockton.

The raising of cattle, long the chief industry of the section, now is being varied with fruit farming in districts which are sub-irrigated by huge springs, and general agricultural expansion, Mr. Reid said. The country still is sparsely settled, however, he said, and many big ranches remain. Mr. Reid himself lives "on the north boundary of a pasture which Alpine borders on the south, a distance of more than forty miles," he said.

Mr. Reid is a brother of Ted Reid, superintendent of the Silverton schools last year, and a graduate of the West Texas State Teachers College. He has visited here several times before.

Miss Columbia Redfean and Q. C. Redfean were in Amarillo Tuesday on business.

Trapped in bed when her home was engulfed in flames, Mary Elizabeth Ellis, 15-year-old daughter of J. A. Ellis, who lives fifteen miles southwest of Canyon, was burned to death early today.

Henry Ellis, a brother, who was starting a fire with kerosene when the container exploded, was seriously burned about the body, and his arms and hands lacerated by the fire. He was taken to an Amarillo hospital.

The fire started while occupants of the house still were in bed, and spread so rapidly that all of them were forced to flee in their bedclothes.

The younger Ellis had arisen to stir up the fire before dressing. He was pouring kerosene on the smoldering fire when the can exploded, showering the room with burning oil. The fire spread quickly and the house was falling in before neighbors arrived with assistance. R. B. Gist, owner of the farm on which the Ellis' lived was one of the first to arrive. He found the survivors had taken shelter in the barn but were suffering intensely from the cold.

The house caught fire at about 6 o'clock, Mr. Gist estimated.

C. L. Thompson and Burt Newlin of the Thompson Hardware Company here rushed to the scene at first news of the fire. They were able to assist members of the family and to aid in taking Ellis to the hospital.

J. A. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellis and their small baby, and the dead girl were in the house. The wife of the elder Ellis died Dec. 25 in an Amarillo hospital after an operation.

Funeral services for the dead girl will be held tomorrow at the First Baptist Church in Happy, according to an announcement by the family. The Griggs-Thompson funeral home here will be in charge.

Because of the distance from Canyon and the slowness with which details were received here, it was impossible to send units of the Canyon fire department to the farm. The Ellis' had no facilities for fighting the fire and the flames spread with such rapidity that it was impossible to rescue Mary Elizabeth until she already had been fatally burned.

The house and its furnishings and all clothing of the family was lost in the fire.

J. Lovell Finds He Can Plant an Acre of Wheat for $1.42

It costs $1.42 to prepare and seed an acre of wheat in Randall county.

This figure is based upon a study made by county agent W. H. Upchurch from the files of James Lovell a wheat grower of this county.

Four hundred acres of wheat was planted with an expenditure of $99.60 for kerosene, with an additional $18.15 for gasoline used in starting the tractor and in the Ford which was used on trips to and from the wheat field. Oil and grease for the small car and tractor cost $30.05.

Mr. Lovell paid $50 for 25 bushels of the seed wheat which he used and $175 for 175 bushels.

In determining the cost of preparing the ground and seeding the wheat Mr. Lovell counted the interest chargeable to 400 acres of land, depreciation of wheat drill, tractor and plow, and all the incidental operating costs which often make the difference between profit and loss in farming.

Good wheat land in Randall county may be bought for from $15 to $40 an acre, depending upon location. With a rapidly developing system of roads, location is becoming less important and desirable land is increasing in price.

ROBERT ALPHEUS FITE DIES

Robert Alpheus Fite, 12-day old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fite, died at the home of his parents Saturday afternoon, January 26. The funeral was held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 with the Rev. C. G. Howard in charge of the services.

Flower girls were Billy Greenfield, Armor Lee Greenfield, Ellen Dickinson, Laura Fern Bryant, Pail bearers were Kathryn Bryant, Elizabeth Carr, Cleo Heath, and Florine Bowman. Burial was made in Dreamland cemetery.

Youths Pay Fines of $26.50 Each for Wrecking Rink Tent

Complaints were filed against nine Canyon youths this week as a result of the collapse of a tent covering a portable skating rink which has been operating here for the last month. Supporting guy ropes about the tent were cut, according to the complaints, and $300 damage done to the property.

Four of the youths paid fines and court costs amounting to about $26.50 each. Others of the group have not been found, according to officers, and still others are yet to be arraigned.

Minimum sentences were assessed in each case. The law permits fines up to $1,000 for the offense, according to Judge B. F. Fronabarger, in whose court the cases were tried.

No attempt was made by owners of the rink to repair the tent and re-open here. The equipment was moved from Canyon early this week.

County officials requested that name of the youths named in the complaints be withheld.

Tax Collections Swelled by Last-Minute Payments

Although about 400 people paid property taxes during the last week, the office of John Fry, tax collector, was crowded today by property owners who sought to avoid penalties.

A 10 per cent penalty will be added after midnight tonight to all taxes remaining unpaid.

Records of the tax collectors' office, including those of the branch office in Amarillo, showed late Wednesday that 1513 people have paid property taxes this year. More than 500 other people have yet to pay their tax, according to last year's records.

Poll taxes had been paid Wednesday by 1037 people and 1260 automobiles had been registered.

Court Term Ends With Near Record for Light Docket

District court closed its winter term here last Friday after disposing of an exceptionally light docket.

Only one indictment was returned by the grand jury during the last week of the session. J. A. Allen of Amarillo, arrested by Sheriff John Fry during a liquor raid in south Amarillo, was indicted.

Allen already is under bond, but search for him this week was fruitless, Mr. Fry said.

The outstanding criminal trial of the term was that of O. J. Podzemny of Umbarger, who was charged with violations of the prohibition laws. A jury disagreed in the first trial and a second returned a verdict of acquittal. Another count against Podzemny will be tried at the next term of court, and still another indictment was dismissed.

Civil suits likewise were exceptionally light, and most of them were reported to the court as settled when called for trial.

HELEN HAMILTON DIES

Friends of Rev. W. E. Hamilton, former pastor of the Canyon Methodist Church, were grieved to learn of the death of his two-year old daughter, Helen, last Thursday. She had been sick for several weeks with a throat trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Terry and son, Mrs. W. E. Heizer and Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Heizer visited with relatives in Claude last Sunday.

College Faculty in Demand as Speakers Through Panhandle

Demand for members of the faculty of the West Texas State Teachers College as speakers for organizations and special occasions continues throughout the Panhandle, a check made by Mrs. T. V. Reeves of the Bureau of Public Service shows.

In the immediate future, persons from the College will dedicate new school buildings in Olton and Panhandle.

J. A. Hill, president of the College will make the principal address at the dedication of the new school building at Panhandle, January 31.

Law Sone, a graduate of the College is superintendent of the Panhandle system. The building which has just been completed is one of the best in this region.

Professor Frank R. Phillips of the Agriculture department addressed the Kiwanis Club and the high school student body at Tulia Tuesday, and Prof. F. E. Savage and Mrs. T. M. Montfort spoke to the high school students of Hereford on the same day.

D. A. Shirley, registrar of the College, will speak at the dedication of the Olton high school building which has just been completed under the leadership of Superintendent H. P. Webb.

Field service is a regular part of the duties of the members of the faculty of the College, according to administrative authorities.

T. C. Thompson and Wade Reid Speak to Rotarians Tuesday

T. C. Thompson, president of the Thompson Hardware Company, and Wade Reid of Fort Davis, Tex., were speakers on the luncheon program of the Canyon Rotary Club last Tuesday.

Mr. Thompson gave a "classification talk," telling of the ideals and the usefulness of the business of retailing hardware and implements. The use of hardware and implements is universal, he said, and evidences of the vocation everywhere, in agriculture, in manufacturing, in building, and even on the high seas.

The retailer of hardware and implements is engaged in something besides a mere business, and renders a distinct class of service to the public, Mr. Thompson said. This type of retailer must "study constantly to keep abreast of the needs of the moment," in the giving of his service," he said.

"It takes a life of constant study without a divided mind to give good service, and the retailing of hardware and implements is not merely a business but a vocation of service to all mankind," he said.

Wade Reid, of Fort Davis, told the Rotarians of the development of the high plateau country in which Fort Davis, Alpine, Marfa, and Fort Stockton.

The raising of cattle, long the chief industry of the section, now is being varied with fruit farming in districts which are sub-irrigated by huge springs, and general agricultural expansion, Mr. Reid said. The country still is sparsely settled, however, he said, and many big ranches remain. Mr. Reid himself lives "on the north boundary of a pasture which Alpine borders on the south, a distance of more than forty miles," he said.

Mr. Reid is a brother of Ted Reid, superintendent of the Silverton schools last year, and a graduate of the West Texas State Teachers College. He has visited here several times before.

Miss Columbia Redfeard and Q. C. Redfeard were in Amarillo Tuesday on business.

Trapped in bed when her home was engulfed in flames, Mary Elizabeth Ellis, 15-year-old daughter of J. A. Ellis, who lives fifteen miles southwest of Canyon, was burned to death early today.

Henry Ellis, a brother, who was starting a fire with kerosene when the container exploded, was seriously burned about the body, and his arms and hands lacerated by the fire. He was taken to an Amarillo hospital.

The fire started while occupants of the house still were in bed, and spread so rapidly that all of them were forced to flee in their bedclothes.

The younger Ellis had arisen to stir up the fire before dressing. He was pouring kerosene on the smoldering fire when the can exploded, showering the room with burning oil. The fire spread quickly and the house was falling in before neighbors arrived with assistance. R. B. Gist, owner of the farm on which the Ellis' lived was one of the first to arrive. He found the survivors had taken shelter in the barn but were suffering intensely from the cold.

The house caught fire at about 6 o'clock, Mr. Gist estimated.

C. L. Thompson and Burt Newlin of the Thompson Hardware Company here rushed to the scene at first news of the fire. They were able to assist members of the family and to aid in taking Ellis to the hospital.

J. A. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellis and their small baby, and the dead girl were in the house. The wife of the elder Ellis died Dec. 25 in an Amarillo hospital after an operation.

Funeral services for the dead girl will be held tomorrow at the First Baptist Church in Happy, according to an announcement by the family. The Griggs-Thompson funeral home here will be in charge.

Because of the distance from Canyon and the slowness with which details were received here, it was impossible to send units of the Canyon fire department to the farm. The Ellis' had no facilities for fighting the fire and the flames spread with such rapidity that it was impossible to rescue Mary Elizabeth until she already had been fatally burned.

The house and its furnishings and all clothing of the family was lost in the fire.

J. Lovell Finds He Can Plant an Acre of Wheat for $1.42

It costs $1.42 to prepare and seed an acre of wheat in Randall county.

This figure is based upon a study made by county agent W. H. Upchurch from the files of James Lovell a wheat grower of this county.

Four hundred acres of wheat was planted with an expenditure of $69.60 for kerosene, with an additional $18.15 for gasoline used in starting the tractor and in the Ford which was used on trips to and from the wheat field. Oil and grease for the small car and tractor cost $30.05.

Mr. Lovell paid $50 for 25 bushels of the seed wheat which he used and $175 for 175 bushels.

In determining the cost of preparing the ground and seeding the wheat Mr. Lovell counted the interest chargeable to 400 acres of land, depreciation of wheat drill, tractor and plow, and all the incidental operating costs which often make the difference between profit and loss in farming.

Good wheat land in Randall county may be bought for from $15 to $40 an acre, depending upon location. With a rapidly developing system of roads, location is becoming less important and desirable land is increasing in price.

ROBERT ALPHEUS FITE DIES

Robert Alpheus Fite, 12-day old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fite, died at the home of his parents Saturday afternoon, January 26. The funeral was held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 with the Rev. C. G. Howard in charge of the services.

Flower girls were Billy Greenfield, Arnor Lee Greenfield, Ellen Dickinson, Laura Fern Bryan-Pall bearers were Kathryn Bryant, Elizabeth Carr, Cleo Heath, and Florine Bowman. Burial was made in Dreamland cemetery.

THE EMPIRE CALLED TEXAS

The news that nearly all of the Santa Fe railway's new construction program for 1929 lies in Texas is significant of that state's status as the great railroad frontier of this day. Roads like the Santa Fe do not make hasty decisions to build new lines, particularly in a day when motor bus and truck competition is becoming increasingly keen. Additions to the existing lines are constructed only when future business promises profits. It is apparent that the Santa Fe sees profits in those sections of Texas—especially in the Panhandle—where the lines are to be laid.

The last twenty years have seen a tremendous agricultural, commercial and industrial development in Texas. In the Panhandle and "staked plains" country, once given over almost entirely to cattle, wheat and other crops on top of the soil and mineral products underneath are rapidly lessening the size of the old ranges. The state retains its supremacy as the premier producer of cotton in America, and in addition is achieving an industrial and commercial primacy. Second only to New York in merchandise exports, Texas not only has made use of its natural outlets to the sea, but has developed others, notably at Houston.

Standing fifth in population, with nearly 5½ millions within its borders, sprawling like a colossus over the South and Southwest, large enough for four or five good-sized states, Texas is just on the threshold of her real greatness. The West will watch with interest this development of an empire which is a striking hybrid of southern and western qualities.—Kansas City Star

"AMERICA"

During Hoover's recent trip about South America, he had to refrain studiously from referring to the people of the United States as "Americans." The correspondents with him were enjoined to make no use of the term even in their communications home.

It seems that the Brazilians, the Argentines and the Colombians, who feel they have as much right to the word "American" as we have, strongly resent our using it to designate this country alone.

The term "America" has no exact significance. So many nations are in North and South America! In referring to our countrymen, foreign papers must of necessity use the long term: "Americans of the United States."

The word United States is awkward in many of its forms. No one can be a "United Stateser!" We can talk of "United States territory" or "United States history" but think of talking "United States literature" or the "United States language."

Noah Webster declared that a deeper national feeling would be engendered by the adoption of a felicitous name all our own. But after all usage is everything. Usage will keep the name "America" in our minds and on our tongues for centuries. The word is imbedded in our history and literature. It will be well to recognize, however, that the outside world is likely to grow intolerant of our claims upon a word that designates not merely one nation but two large continents.

STIMULATES READING OF CHILDREN IN VACATION

For reading and giving a brief sketch of ten selected books, children in Georgia, members of vacation reading clubs conducted by the Georgia State Library Commission, are awarded a certificate. A list of 25 books, suited to the age and grade of the child, is selected by the commission, and books are loaned to the children, two books at a time for two weeks. A note book for the sketches is provided by the commission. Reading of all 25 books entitles a child to a gold star certificate. During the three summers that the plan has been in operation 735 members have been enrolled, of whom 335 have received certificates. Not one book of the 1,875 lent to club members last summer was lost or damaged.

EXTRA CONGRESS, EXTRA TROUBLE.

PROSPERITY'S BACK LOG.
MR. LUCEY HALF RIGHT.
WISE KING AMANULLAH.

There is to be an extra session of Congress, so well informed Washington reports, and the farmer will wait for "relief" until the new congress gathers.

Mr. Hoover probably wishes that milestone were passed.

The farm question is this:

How can you make those engaged in a thoroughly disorganized haphazard industry as prosperous as those in industries thoroughly organized on a scientific production and selling basis?

Changes in the tariff are predicted. "Big financial and industrial interests feel that tariff changes are needed."

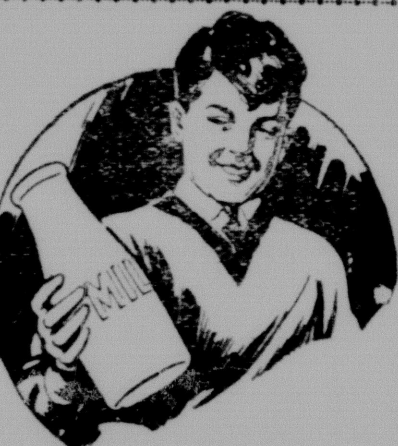

If they feel that way, the changes will be made, and probably should be made. Big business has its faults, but it knows what the country needs, realizing that the big man can get only his part of what the little man can earn.

All of our prosperity comes down to the fact that people EARNING more can SPEND more.

Mr. Ecker of the Metropolitan Life Company puts it in words: "The people earn fifteen to twenty billions more than it costs them to live. Those extra billions are prosperity's back log."

Mr. Lucey, the old Northampton cobbler who knew President Coolidge when a boy, is supposed to have given little Calvin this advice, "Keep your shoes laced tight, and never let your tongue wag."

President Coolidge took that good advice about the tongue. There is no information as to the advice concerning shoes.

It is harmful to lace children's shoes too tight. Lacing tightly around the ankles, pressing on blood vessels, impeding the flow of blood, gives the heart more work to do. Cobbler Lucey was only half right.

King Amanullah of Afghanistan discovered suddenly and violently what American prohibition enthusiasts are discovering slowly, that it isn't easy to change men's habits by proclamation or law.

Amanullah came back from his visit to England wearing European clothes, his wife fashionably dressed, short skirts, silk stockings, nothing to cover up her face.

He announced that women in Afghanistan were also to go with their faces uncovered, no more "seclusion."

Tribes rose against him, armed, drove him into a fortress.

King Amanullah changed his mind. Afghan girls sent to be educated in the modern way in Turkey are to come home. European dress is to be abolished. Soldiers of Afghanistan are to be allowed to follow and bow down to their religious leaders, the Holy men, or Pirs, and women will be kept in seclusion.

All the suggested reforms will be thrown overboard. Wise Amanullah, he wanted peace.

The Chinese, poor creatures butchered, satrvred, forced into revolutions of which they do not know the meaning, know at least one thing, and that is, that it is important to have good roads.

Mr. G. Walter Reed, of the Santa Fe Railroad, quotes an engineer just back from China: "Food from South China cannot reach those starving in Northern China because of fifteen hundred impassable miles."

BIG MEN FROM SMALL TOWNS

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER

One of the most important of Kansans, and therefore one of the most important of Americans, is Senator Arthur Capper. For years he has been a leader in the field of agricultural journalism as the owner of influential farm papers. He has also been Governor of Kansas, and is now Senator from that State. He is one of the most active forces representing the farmers of the United States.

Born at Garnett, Kan., a small town, in 1865, he was educated in the local high school and later moved to Topeka. In 1884 his working career began. He started as a compositor on the Topeka Daily Capital.

His rise was rapid. He was successively reporter, city editor, Washington correspondent; and since 1892 has been publisher and proprietor of the paper. In addition he is publisher and proprietor of a good number of farm weeklies. He is a director of the Farmers' National Bank of Topeka, Kan., and president of the Board of Regents of the Kansas Agricultural College. From 1915 to 1919 he was Governor of Kansas. He has been a Senator since 1919. He heads the Kansas State Good Roads Association and the Kansas State Historical Society.

The activities listed above show Capper as an extremely active, vitally important American. His rise to prominence and a broad sphere of usefulness from his start as a compositor is but one more illustration of the opportunities that are open to small town boys.

THE FIRST LAW OF MOTORING— be sure of your OIL

If motorists could only be thoroughly impressed with the paramount importance of proper lubrication, cars would last longer, depreciation would decrease and operating costs would tumble to a fraction of their present staggering figure.

When you allow an unknown, unbranded, "mystery" oil to go into your crankcase you are violating the first law of economical and efficient motoring.

By demanding the tried and tested brands marketed by the Continental Oil Company you are sure of your oil. Back of each of these brands stands the experience of almost 50 years—and a reputation which stands for nothing but the best. Ask for these brands at service stations and the better garages.

Conoco Motor Oil insures protection. It seals compression—saves gasoline—fights friction. Flows freely at low temperatures. Stands up under most intense cylinder heat. In short, does a complete lubricating job in all kinds of weather. Ask for the grade made especially for your car.

OHIO AND ART

A county supervisor of art and two assistants have been added to the teaching personnel in Medina County, Ohio. For several years instruction in music has been given in schools of the county, and a music supervisor and seven assistants are employed.

Eating onions is a beauty secret—but not after you eat them.

Wayside Items

Jan. 29 days misty, foggy and freezing cold. Some think an advantage to this year's prospect for fruit buds to be encased in ice.

Mrs. Lucille Ballard Allgood and father, Mack Ballard from Ft. Worth, reached Floyd Adams' Friday afternoon, visiting until Sunday afternoon, when they left on their return, planning to reach Mrs. Will Grigsby's at Floydada Sunday night. Mrs. Allgood has recently been appointed home demonstration agent at Big Spring.

W. I. Lane made a business trip to Amarillo Tuesday.

J. E. McGehee and wife visited relatives in Canyon the past week end.

W. H. Hamblen and W. L. Fisher left Monday for Quitaque with mules for market.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hamblen took their baby to Canyon Saturday night for medical treatment. The trouble was pronounced acute indigestion.

Floyd Adams is on the sick list. Mrs. Bessie Lane received notice Saturday from Claude that she had been appointed notary public for Wayside district.

Mrs. Bessie Lane and her children of Happy, also Mrs. Ida Smith and Virgil Lee of near Hereford were Sunday visitors in the Sluder home. John Russell seems to be much improved, looks well and can take long walks. Glen Franklin still on liquid diet but improving all the time.

J. C. Carter attended Sunday School and preaching services last Sunday.

Rev. J. R. Cole filled his appointment Sunday morning. We regret to learn Mrs. Cole is in the Plainview sanitarium for a week and will be there another week. Mrs. Gardner of Vigo is taking care of her two boys. Rev. Cole expected to visit her after services.

Mrs. Emma Franklin is still in Floyd county with her sick grandchild, Leroy Childress. Last report he was very bad, with no hopes for his recovery.

Rev. E. L. Chambless and wife of Plainview came the 13th and gave a good sermon.

The weather has been very cold the past week.

OPERA SINGERS HEALTHY

DOCTOR'S SURVEY SHOWS

Opera singers and "captains of industry" enjoy exceptionally good health, according to a survey just completed by Dr. William P. Emerson. Replies to twenty questions showed for the most part medium or low scores, but a great captain of industry, in perfect health at the age of 74, had the highest score of 95 per cent. Opera singers, according to Dr. Emerson, "are a remarkably healthy group."

In summing up the results of his survey, Dr. Emerson says: "Most persons enjoy only 65 to 75 per cent health. Yet by using a fair amount of health intelligence or applied health knowledge, they could enjoy 90 to 100 per cent, which we call optimum health."

"Impaired health in nine cases out of ten can be improved at any age and often can be made optimum. We should plan health as carefully as we plan the budget of expenses, by taking stock of our resources and then adopting a program that will accomplish the desired results."

Discussing the question of sleeping hours and their relation to health, Dr. Emerson notes that opera singers retire very late, but still lead all classes of occupations in their health record. "It does not matter," he declares, "at what time a person goes to bed, if he goes at a regular hour and has sufficient uninterrupted sleep. Regularity is of the greatest importance. For adults there is little difference whether they go to bed at nine and get up at five, or go to bed at eleven and get up at seven."

MOTHER'S FRIEND is a comfort to expectant mothers. Externally applied it relieves prenatal distress by relaxing tight tissues and muscles. And it is so soothing. Its daily use makes the skin soft and pliable.

"I was in labor only 25 minutes with my last child, but suffered agonies with three previous children," writes an enthusiastic mother who used "Mother's Friend."

Right now, from this day on, and right up to the day your baby is born, "Mother's Friend" should be used. All drug stores sell "Mother's Friend." Begin now and you will realize the wisdom of doing so as the weeks roll by!

Mason Suffered

For 15 Years, Then He Found Sargon

"For fifteen years I suffered from a complication of troubles that I believed started with an inactive liver. I was weak, nervous and generally rundown. I frequently had sharp, shooting pains in my side. My sleep was poor and I lost weight, strength and energy. Nearly everything I ate caused indigestion. I took a trip to Hot Springs, but got no relief there, and then I visited several health resorts in the North seemingly without benefit."

"A friend of mine told me about the fine results he had gotten from Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills, so I bought a bottle. I could see a difference for the better from the first few doses. I began to sleep better and to eat anything I wanted."

"I now feel like a new man. My appetite is fine. The pains in my side have disappeared. I am not the least bit nervous, and am full of energy. I have gained weight and my friends are all commenting upon my wonderful improvement."

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills are wonderful. They ended my constipation and biliousness without gripping in the least."

"I wouldn't be without Sargon if it cost twenty dollars a bottle."

The above remarkable statement was made by A. J. Mason, residing at the Colonial Hotel, Ft. Worth and owner of considerable property, in that city.

Sargon may be obtained in Canyon at J. J. Walker Drug Store.

TELL IT TO THE MARINES

Over the entrances to certain encampments of the American Marines is a sign which reads—"If you don't listen, you'll get killed." But this warning did not originate with the Marines, but it is really the life code of all wild things in Nature. With them, to obey is to live, and to disobey is to die. Almost daily, wild creatures are called upon to make life-and-death choices, and they usually choose with celerity and dispatch. Reason and natural laws go hand in hand, and to violate a law of nature is always to defy reason."

Success for the most part consists of getting something you want after you no longer want it.

It's never the best policy to imitate a bad example.

THE FIRST LAW OF MOTORING— be sure of your OIL

If motorists could only be thoroughly impressed with the paramount importance of proper lubrication, cars would last longer, depreciation would decrease and operating costs would tumble to a fraction of their present staggering figure.

When you allow an unknown, unbranded, "mystery" oil to go into your crankcase you are violating the first law of economical and efficient motoring.

By demanding the tried and tested brands marketed by the Continental Oil Company you are sure of your oil. Back of each of these brands stands the experience of almost 50 years—and a reputation which stands for nothing but the best. Ask for these brands at service stations and the better garages.

Conoco Amalie is 100% Pennsylvania Oil—refined from premium crudes by a special process. Universally recommended by automotive engineers and lubrication experts.

Through exhaustive laboratory and road tests it has demonstrated its ability to lubricate properly under the most trying conditions of motor operation.

CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY

Producers, Refiners and Marketers of high-grade petroleum products in Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington, Wyoming

Conoco Motor Oil insures protection. It seals compression—saves gasoline—fights friction. Flows freely at low temperatures. Stands up under most intense cylinder heat. In short, does a complete lubricating job in all kinds of weather. Ask for the grade made especially for your car.

HONESTY

Governor Sampson of Kentucky is starting a very worthy movement indeed. He believes too many people are "indifferent honest" and thinks there should be more "affirmative honesty"—especially in business transactions.

He wants a nationwide survey to stimulate fair-dealing. "Integrity is not vanishing," he says, "and all of us ought to be emphatic in saying so. This undertaking is not for the purpose of gathering statistics about acts of honesty. It is a survey of thought concerning honesty."

"The purpose is to increase our realization of the truth that although we all approve the principle of right conduct none of us is as affirmative as we might well be in our aid of increasing the general belief that honesty and good purpose are the prevailing motives of most people."

A great phase: "Affirmative honesty." It is a quality well worth cultivating, and Governor Sampson is to be congratulated on bringing it so forcibly before the public.

Modern Business Men Know That Persistent Advertising Makes New Customers And Keeps Old Ones Satisfied

THAT failure to advertise kills many a profitable business.

THAT advertising is essential to business success.

THAT to "ask 'em to buy" makes selling easier.

THAT progressive dealers don't waste time trying to sell un-advertised, unasked for merchandise.

THAT the busiest, most helpful thing in any business is advertising.

THAT a live business concern can't afford to mark time.

THAT the only business that can afford to mark time is dead.

THAT the ones who get the business are the ones who go after it in a vigorous way.

THAT a going business should be a growing business.

THAT business men today are building their business on a basis of truthful advertising.

HONESTY

Governor Sampson of Kentucky is starting a very worthy movement indeed. He believes too many people are "indifferent honest" and thinks there should be more "affirmative honesty"—especially in business transactions.

He wants a nationwide survey to stimulate fair-dealing. "Integrity is not vanishing," he says, "and all of us ought to be emphatic in saying so. This undertaking is not for the purpose of gathering statistics about acts of honesty. It is a survey of thought concerning honesty."

"The purpose is to increase our realization of the truth that although we all approve the principle of right conduct none of us is as affirmative as we might well be in our aid of increasing the general belief that honesty and good purpose are the prevailing motives of most people."

A great phase: "Affirmative honesty." It is a quality well worth cultivating, and Governor Sampson is to be congratulated on bringing it so forcibly before the public.

Modern Business Men Know That Persistent Advertising Makes New Customers And Keeps Old Ones Satisfied

THAT failure to advertise kills many a profitable business.

THAT advertising is essential to business success.

THAT to "ask 'em to buy" makes selling easier.

THAT progressive dealers don't waste time trying to sell unadvertised, unasked for merchandise.

THAT the busiest, most helpful thing in any business is advertising.

THAT a live business concern can't afford to mark time.

THAT the only business that can afford to mark time is dead.

THAT the ones who get the business are the ones who go after it in a vigorous way.

THAT a going business should be a growing business.

THAT business men today are building their business on a basis of truthful advertising.

Farm Brothers Now Agriculture Deans

Frederick B. Mumford (left) and Herbert W. Mumford, two farm brothers who rose side by side to the head of two great agricultural colleges, one in Missouri, and the other in Illinois.

In the hall of fame of the American Society of Animal Production now hang the pictures of the Mumford Brothers, Frederick and Herbert. Frederick is dean of the University of Missouri agricultural college and Herbert is dean of the University of Illinois agricultural college.

E. C. L. Mumford, their father, taught them farm organization and management. They worked together on their father's 400-acre livestock farm near Moscow, Mich., and then went to Albion College.

Later they transferred to Michigan State College at Lansing. Frederick three years older, graduated first and became a professor at the Lansing School. Herbert went to work on the home farm, and when in 1895 Frederick went to Missouri, Herbert took his Lansing job. Herbert became a professor at Illinois in 1901 and dean in 1922. Frederick headed the Missouri agricultural college in 1909.

Frederick operates the old home farm. Herbert raises purebred stock on a 600-acre farm near Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Society for Animal Production could not decide this year between the two brothers in choosing the outstanding agriculturist in animal production. So they have honored both these brothers whose careers have been so uniquely parallel.

PARENT TEACHERS ASSOCIATION MEET

The Parent Teachers Association met Thursday at four o'clock in the music room of the grade school. A very enjoyable feature of the program was some selection given by the "Little Rhythm Band." This band is made up of children from the first and second grades. They do work that would be a credit to much older children. Dr. Wilson gave a very helpful talk on communicable diseases. It was to be regretted that no more parents were out to hear him. Members present were strongly in favor of a continuation of visiting day. The regular visiting day is the second Thursday in each month. In view of the fact that this falls on Valentine next time, it was decided to postpone it one day. There will be on display materials representing the first half year's work. All parents interested in seeing what the school is attempting to do are cordially invited to be present.

Warwick Offers Resolutions For Hon. Lee Bivins

The House Journal of the Forty-First Legislature in regular session at Austin, Texas, Wednesday, January 23, devotes a page to the following:

"In Memory of Hon. Lee Bivins, Mr. Warwick offered the following resolution:

Whereas, On the 17th day of January, 1929, the Honorable Lee Bivins of Amarillo, Texas, was called by death. He was mayor of one of the leading cities of Texas and a prominent citizen of this State, who had taken an active part in the building of a new and progressive empire on the plains of Texas; and

Whereas, No man has had more to do with the stabilizing forces of education, Christian activity and civic progressiveness than Lee Bivins, who sought no political office for himself, but who was drafted by the citizens of Amarillo to direct the affairs of a great and growing city. He was an outstanding force in the varied fields of activities; was one of the largest cattle raisers in the Southwest; owner of extensive lands, upon which the largest oil fields of Texas were discovered and developed; and one of the largest business men of Texas. Hundreds of associates relied upon his mere judgment, and from these councils he will be missed as a friend and adviser; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives of the Forty-first Legislature, That we express our sincere sympathy to the family, relatives and numerous friends of the deceased, that a page of the House Journal be set aside in memory of our beloved Mr. Bivins; and that when the House adjourns today it will be with our respect to him; and be it further

Represents College at Women's Club Conference Jan 14

At the conference held in Washington, D. C. from January 14 to 17, on the "Cause and Cure of War," Miss Hattie M. Anderson, of the college history faculty, was one of the representatives from Texas.

This is the fourth conference that has been held to discuss the subject on the "Cause and Cure of War," and the membership of the conference are from ten national women's organizations.

The purpose of the conference was to discuss problems that led to war and to find out how one might establish machinery that would tend to obviate war. Since the conference was made up of women from groups so varied, there were both radicals and conservatives. Thus each problem was viewed from both sides. One of the primary purposes was to bring pressure to bear upon senators to accept the Kellogg, Briende Peace Pact.

About one thousand women were present and the delegations from each state visited their senators by appointment at eleven o'clock on Tuesday morning for the purpose of urging him to accept the Pact. Miss Anderson reports that the Texas delegates had a pleasant visit with Senator Shepherd, who is a strong supporter of the Pact. Senator Mayfield was convalescing from an attack of influenza and was unable to keep the appointment with the Texas representatives.

There were many national and international noted speakers on programs and such subjects as "The Kellogg-Briende Peace Pact," "Naval Programme," and "Recent Pan-American Treaties" were discussed.

According to Miss Anderson it is too early to predict the central theme for the conference which will be held next year. But she is of the opinion that it will be to further peace propaganda. Each delegate was urged to return home and spread information on the possibility of establishing peace and not war as a national policy. The conference was agreed that its most important work is the development of public opinion which will ultimately determine whether or not war is abolished.

"WOMEN, BE YOUR AGE," SAYS BEAUTY SPECIALIST

Most older women make a great mistake in wearing their skirts very short, even if their legs are well-shaped, says Hazel Rawson Cades, beauty editor of the Woman's Home Companion. Miss Cades insists that she is not criticizing any woman for looking as well as she can, at any age. But she declares that women do grow older and nobody can beat the game much.

In regard to skirts, she insists that the whole architectural scheme of the elder woman's figure should be one of dignity, "and you can't get it with short skirts." Shoes, she adds, should be inconspicuous and give adequate support to heel and instep. "An insecure footing and noticeably careful gait are two unmistakable signs of age," she explains, "and may often be avoided by proper choice of shoes."

It is entirely possible, Miss Cades observes, for a woman to be much nicer-looking at sixty than at forty. "But she certainly won't be as young a woman, as her methods of decorating her person should not be the same. Every age has its own limitations, standards and assets. The older woman should recognize, accept and capitalize hers. My quarrel with the look-young school is that it attempts to iron out these personal characteristics or to dress them up so that nobody in the world would dream that the mature woman had lived, seen or knew any more than the veriest youngster.

"As one grows older, adjustments in the technique of grooming are necessary. There is, for example, the gradual color change in hair, eyes and complexion. The brown-eyed brown-haired girl who has always worn browns finds her hair turning gray and her complexion growing paler. Brown ceases to flatter her, and if she is wise she turns to greens, grays or plum shades. Only the young fresh skin can dare a bright rouge or any rouge in quantity. Any showing of face powder makes a haggard skin look more so."

When the other fellow loses his temper, stop the argument; you have won.

Canyon Eagles to Play Hereford Whitefaces in "Double Game" Friday Night at High School Gym

Another "thrilling" game will be played Friday night in the Ward School gym when Canyon plays the Hereford team. Hereford has one of the strongest teams in the Panhandle, and it is rumored that the Canyon boys will have to play hard, and the Purple Peps yell loud in order to defeat Hereford's huskies.

The Eagles have drilled hard since the game with Hereford has been announced to show their "real stuff."

Let's go, boys! Boom! Rah! Eagles!

SPANISH COOKS

Monday, the third year Spanish class was turned into a foods class. The students cooked all kinds of delicious pies, fudge, pies, cakes, fruit salad, and jello. Everyone in the class seemed to be very good cooks, although they had to tell how to make the food in Spanish. It made everyone hungry, especially Miss Tanner.

Miss Estelle Grounds entered entered school here this week. Miss Grounds is a popular senior of Amarillo, and it is hoped that she will make another loyal senior here. She makes the sixty-fifth member of the senior class.

GIRLS' TEAM PLAYS TULIA FRIDAY NIGHT

One of the most thrilling games witnessed this season by either Canyon or Tulia spectators was the game played by the Canyon and Tulia girls Friday night.

In the first quarter Tulia girls started off with a boom! and made nine points before Canyon scored. The Canyon girls started scoring, but were held back on account of the referee. The second quarter was about the same, and the half ended Tulia 17, Canyon 10.

The referee was changed the second half and Canyon girls played ball. Their passing showed much improvement over the last game, and the goal shooting was not bad. Gladys made several home runs for goals. In spite of all of Canyon's good playing, Tulia managed to stay in the lead. The game ended with Tulia 25, Canyon 19.

During the last quarter of the game Willie Brooks fell and slightly injured her knee. Lola Doak substituted for her.

Although Canyon did not win, everyone was proud of the way the team played against the good team of Tulia. The girls are work-

Exes, Past and Present

It is interesting to note that Mrs. C. R. Flesher of this city, graduated from Canyon High School in 1907. She was a student in T. C. U. for two years, but received the first diploma in the first graduating class in W. T. She also attended school in Boulder and Chicago. She later taught four years in Canyon High School. Mrs. Flesher gives credit for the loyalty created for Canyon High to the fact that during this time the Alumni Association was formed, thus carrying on the appreciation of the work done in the school.

MUSIC CLUB PROGRAM

After the announcements concerning the ball games for the coming week had been made, the chapel program was turned over to the music club.

Margaret Gamble opened the program with a piano number which was given very well. A short sketch of the life of Frances Hopkins, the first American composer, was read by Oressa Hastings. Little Miss Brain from the ward school played a clever piece, "The Musical Clock," which the students enjoyed very much. Lillian Davis also gave a beautiful piano solo. A duet by Margaret Gamble and Dorothy Faye Rusk concluded the program. The students enjoyed the program very much, and they are always glad when the music club has charge of chapel.

GAMES WITH LUBBOCK

The Canyon Eagles played Lubbock two games Friday and Saturday. Owing to car trouble the Eagles did not arrive until the scheduled time for the game. Tired from their trip, cold and otherwise disheartened, the Eagles attempted to play basketball, but the attempt was futile and they lost the game 22 to 15.

The game Saturday night was different. After a good rest the Eagles played the best game, better than the one with Hereford, they have played so far. Wiggins played as well as he did last year. He showed up fine on both offense and defense. The Cabe brothers, Jim and Ralph, played well. Murphy gave the ball wings for the short time he played. The Eagles won the second game 17-26.

HARD TO CHANGE WRITTEN LANGUAGE BY DECREE

Difficulty has been encountered in Turkey in carrying out the order of the Turkish Government for use of Latin letters instead of the Arabic as the medium for written and printed text. It is reported that drastic measures have been employed to enforce the order in Constantinople and the Turkish Black Sea littoral, and that the ministry of education has issued a circular warning all officials that they must without delay learn to read and write the new characters. It is stated that the reform is not proving so popular as was anticipated, that the press is having difficulty in setting up the new characters. Re-opening schools was postponed on account of the lack of textbooks printed in the new type, and because of the lack of proficiency in the new alphabet on the part of the teachers.

ing hard and expect to beat Tulia in the return game to be played here.

Pep Squad Has 2 New Song Meetings for Games

The Pep Squad girls met at 12:30 Monday. The songs and new yells were practiced at this time. Everyone seemed full of pep, because the Canyon Eagles (which we are proud of) are going to win a great victory over the Golden Sandies. It just takes the Canyon Eagles to settle the Amarillo Sandstorms.

PEP MEETING

A business meeting was called Friday by Miss Rusk at 12:35 for the electing of officers, and to tell us how proud she was of her pep squad at Hereford.

The officers are as follows: President—Lucy Steward. Vice Pres.—Dorothy Faye Rusk. Sec'y-Treas.—Glenyce Young. Pep Reporter—Marjorie White.

All of the officers were re-elected except the vice president, and we didn't have any vice president the first half of the year, but we have a real vice president now.

FOOTBALL LETTER MEN

At chapel, Coach Spann presented the football sweaters to those boys who had worked hardest and made the team of Canyon High. Sweaters were given:

Second Tramp: I never seen nothing like it. Why, he even reads t he want ads.

ART AND ARITHMETIC

Art is placed on a parity with academic subjects in Lincoln Platoon School, South Bend, Ind., and it becomes an integral part of the child's school life. Pupils work in a room particularly adapted to needs of drawing classes, with necessary paraphernalia. Periods are short, and work is intensive. To develop an interest in civic improvement, architecture, and home planning, art study is related thru problems to civic enterprises and interior decoration.

It's queer that so many men will forget the question of principle when a dollar's involved.

This is the age of speed. Wouldn't it be great if next spring arrived right after this fall.

"Cave Canem"

Much excitement was caused last Tuesday morning when a large number of students passed the Latin and Spanish room on their way to ten o'clock classes. Some had looks of wondering in their eyes while others thought they knew the secret of it all (however, most of them didn't) and were trying to explain it to their fellow students. But what was all this excitement? New students? No. New books? No. Why, a dog and Roman dog house, of course. Probably some of you do not know it, but the old Romans always had a dog and dog kennel just outside the entrance of their homes. It was the belief of the early Romans that by so doing they would be safer and so, on down through the years, it became a custom, and the later Romans still kept it up. On this dog house was printed these words "Cave Canem," meaning "Beware of the dog." If the Romans did not possess a living dog, they substituted an artificial one. This served the purpose just as well.

Many other interesting things are being done by Miss Tanner and her classes. The second year Latin class has made some very good posters illustrating Latin proverbs. Just for an illustration, take the proverb "Veni, vidi, vince," meaning, "I came, I saw, I conquered," one student illustrated it by a young man and young lady. First the young man met her, that was the coming part; then he came to see her, that was the seeing part; and last he won her, that was the acquiring part. Many other posters equally interesting were made.

The Latin and Spanish students are making some beautiful draperies for the windows and door of their room. Oh! you just wait until they're finished. Then you'll see what they really can do.

Visitors are cordially invited to visit this room and see just what they think of it and also the ones who made it possible to be so.

KIDS' LIBRARY

A model school library has been installed in the new Alexander Hamilton Intermediate School, Seattle, Wash. Room, furniture, and general equipment were supplied by the school board. The public library board supplied 3000 carefully selected books and provided the services of a trained and experienced children's librarian. It is hoped that operation of the model library for two years will demonstrate its usefulness, and lead to the installation of similar libraries in all school buildings of the city.

Canyon Eagles Win Victorious Battle Over Amarillo Golden Sandstorm By Score of 22-15 Friday Night

Nearly every ball fan has in his life time witnessed a game in which the suspense was so strenuous that he felt he could hardly stand it. Such was the Canyon-Amarillo game played here Monday night.

The first half was closer than the last. Both teams played real ball, and the half ended with Amarillo 13, Canyon 11.

The Eagles brought a fighting "comeback" with the determination to win. The Sandies only made two free goals during the last half. The Eagles continued their goal throwing. The game came to an end. The score was 22 to 15 in favor of the victorious Eagles. It takes the Eagles to quell the Golden Sandstorm.

Canyon's pep squad showed up big, and the boys all appreciated the loyal support. It has been said over school that Canyon High has the best pep squad it ever had, and the girls surely tried to prove it to the public at the game.

THE EXPERT

Burglar (to his wife): I've tried blasting and I've tried a sledge hammer, but I can't get this safe open.

Wife: Don't give up; let the baby play with it.

"Is she amusing to spend an evening with?"

"Yes, she has a lot of pet theories."

Jerry: How is married life? Do you agree on everything?

Bill: No, I'll say we don't, but don't tell her.

JUNIOR CLASS MEETING

The junior class met Wednesday to elect officers for the following term. The boys were afraid to come in because they were afraid they would be "dunned," but they were finally persuaded and had a great part in electing officers. Ralph felt very proud because he said he had "put over" two. The following were elected:

Clarice Matthews, president.

Bob Sikes, vice-president.

Ruth Smith, secretary and treasurer.

O'Neal Porter, reporter.

The juniors are sure these officers will do everything in their power to promote the welfare of the junior class.

Canyon Eagles to Play Hereford Whitefaces in "Double Game" Friday Night at High School Gym

Another "thrilling" game will be played Friday night in the Ward School gym when Canyon plays the Hereford team. Hereford has one of the strongest teams in the Panhandle, and it is rumored that the Canyon boys will have to play hard, and the Purple Peps yell loud in order to defeat Hereford's huskies.

The Eagles have drilled hard since the game with Hereford has been announced to show their "real stuff."

Let's go, boys! Boom! Rah! Eagles!

SPANISH COOKS

Monday, the third year Spanish class was turned into a foods class. The students cooked all kinds of delicious pies, fudge, pies, cakes, fruit salad, and jello. Everyone in the class seemed to be very good cooks; although they had to tell how to make the food in Spanish. It made everyone hungry, especially Miss Tanner.

Miss Estelle Grounds entered entered school here this week. Miss Grounds is a popular senior of Amarillo, and it is hoped that she will make another loyal senior here. She makes the sixty-fifth member of the senior class.

CAPITOL SENTIMENT

—AS REPORTED—
By United Press

By Gordon K. Shearer
United Press Staff Correspondent
Austin, Texas, Jan. 31. (United Press)—Texas consumers are getting badly cheated, according to information laid before the legislature by V. A. Stovall, of the weights and measures division of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

When the consumer buys a package of bacon, he is likely to find that some of the strips have been removed. When he buys a box of berries, it is likely to be a short box. Stovall illustrated how dishonest berry shippers cheat on the boxes. They buy the standard box material, which would make a standard container. But before they put it together they take thin strips of the wood to a work shop, have a quarter of an inch or so cut off and short boxes result.

Grit was exhibited from a poise scale used in weighing cotton. The little handful of extra weight, Stovall showed, had cost the cotton farmers of one county thousands of dollars.

But it isn't always the heavy scale that's right. Stovall warned the farmer to beware of the overweight grain purchaser. A number of them operated that way in West Texas, he told a House committee.

When they found a farmer was making a practice of going to public weighers, these dealers would begin giving him a hundred pounds or so overweight at their granaries. The farmers would conclude that the public scales were wrong. At least he would become willing to take the buyers' weights which paid him more. But when he stopped going to the public weigher, then the buyer shifted his weights around the other way, got back all he formerly had given the farmer and more, too.

Sheets were exhibited from a "cheating scale," the manufacturer of which advertised a three per cent variation.

Present laws provide for prosecution, but Stovall says they are inadequate. One failure is the omission to punish giving of wrong weights unless done by the buyer or seller. For instance, a cotton weigher cannot be prosecuted because he merely furnishes a slip of the weight. He doesn't buy the cotton. It is bought by others on the weight he furnishes.

Short gasoline sales cost Texas $18,000,000 a year, another committee was told. It is proposed to remedy this by a state system of licensing gasoline pumps and prohibiting pumps that have an outlet back into the tank that can be used at the same time gas is being put into an automobile.

Governor Moody, not only is against elective commissions, but if he had his way, utility commissioners would not be eligible for any other office for two years after being commissioners.

This view, announced with considerable vehemence by the Governor, naturally has called attention to the existing state commission as a stepping stone to other offices.

Former Governor O. B. Colquit was a state railroad commissioner before he became Governor. U. S. Senator Earle B. Mayfield went to Washington from the railroad commission. W. M. W. Splawn was appointed on the rail board. He became President of the University of Texas.

No one has stepped from the State Highway Commission into another office. This is an appointive commission, but there is no bar to its members running for another place. R. S. Sterling, present chairman, has been frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor.

Who will get the three $10,000 a year places if an appointive utility commission is created already is causing discussion. Former Senator W. E. Woods, a lame duck of the last primary, is mentioned as a likelihood for one of the places.

Clifford Stone, of Henderson, head of the gas utility section of the present railroad commission, would be a likely choice for one of the other places, especially if it is decided to remove gas utilities into the new commission. Both are lawyers. A technical man would seem to be the logical choice for the third member, if Governor Moody picks these two. Woods was Senate leader of the Governor's forces in the last legislature. Stone was one of Governor Moody's assistants when he was attorney general.

Proposal of J. Lewis Thompson, of Houston, to make ministers and priests ineligible to the governorship or legislature has caused much capitol comment. A constitutional amendment would be necessary to carry it out. The first state constitution, Section 27, had such a prohibition. It said: "Ministers of the Gospel, being by their profession dedicated to God, and the care of the souls ought not to be diverted from the great duties of their functions, therefore no minister of the Gospel, or priest of any denomination whatsoever, shall be eligible to the legislature." The section was dropped in the Constitution of 1869.

Rev. Harper, of Mount Pleasant, author of the anti-evolution bill, says a serious attempt to bar ministers from holding office, would result in civil war. The minister of today, he says, is expected to be and ought to be in touch with affairs. He does not lose his citizenship by becoming a minister.

Court changes have been hard sledding with Texas legislatures. Rep. F. H. Prendergrast, of Marshall, pointed out the other night to a House committee that he was seeking judicial reforms in 1918 that he is still urging in 1929.

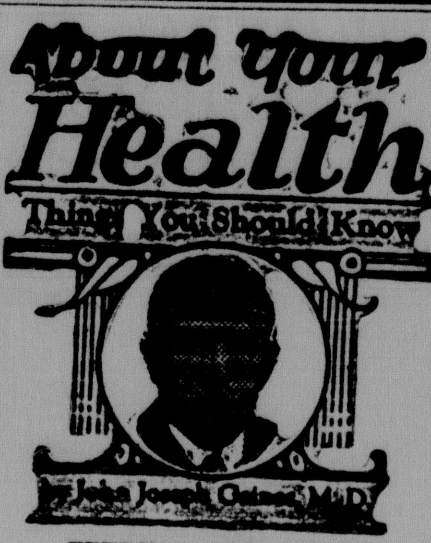

A pamphlet issued by him at that time is now being circulated again. C. H. Jenkins, of Brownwood, codifier of state statutes in 1925, has a number of bills before the House of Representatives for changes in procedure and Harry N. Graves, a former Williamson county prosecutor, is urging a series of bills backed by the district attorneys of the state to check the crime wave from reaching Texas.

One of these would make it no longer grounds for a new trial that the prosecuting attorney had referred to failure of the defendant to testify. Graves says there is no sound reason for this rule.

It originates, Rep. Graves said, in an old provision that prohibited the defendant to testify. When that was changed and he was permitted to testify, the provision was added that failure to do so should not be considered by a jury in reaching a verdict. Graves says that is asking the impossible.

Argument on the other side is that to permit the prosecuting attorney to comment on failure of the defendant to testify is just another way of getting around the constitutional provision that he shall not be compelled to testify against himself.

The opponents also point to cases where a defendant has previously been convicted and has served his sentence. If he testifies, the prosecutor can ask him about that former conviction. The practical result, they say, is to punish him again for the former offense.

FEEDING THE AGED

Old age is in reality a second childhood. The infant needs certain food elements to sustain and produce growth; it will tolerate even more than is needed. But the aged need only sustenance, and cannot comfortably bear more food than that necessary to sustain life. Perhaps it is instinct that leads the old man to insist on the plainest, most nourishing, unstimulating diet.

bread and milk, don't deny him; if he just must have roast potato, you need not call him a back number because he abhors scalloped potatoes. If you cajole him into eating some new-fangled dish with a little of everything in it, yet no real fuel for the waning fire, you may give him an alarming fit of indigestion away into the night. If he refuses shrimp salad, try him on graham mush.

The oldest machine of today, was probably built out of the best material at the outset. It has lasted this long by being properly housed, its joints correctly lubricated, no overloads having been heaped upon it, and, having had the proper fuel for its engine. If you desire your (human) machine to last a long time, do nothing to hinder its normal action. It is easy to indulge appetites, but not so easy to rid ourselves of the effects of overindulgence.

By giving your aged ancestor the food he likes, you are adding to his comfort and longevity, besides gathering blessings on yourself that are mighty nice to have; then, freak dieting is harmful at any age.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. HILL ENTERTAIN FACULTY

President and Mrs. J. A. Hill were at home to the members of the faculty at their home Thursday evening, January 24. In accordance with their usual custom of entertaining the faculty, Mr. and Mrs. Hill were gracious and informal throughout the evening. The faculty members came in groups from 7:30 to 9:00 and from 9:00 to 10:30. The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Jarrett, and Mrs. Gertrude Green.

Delicious not punch, sandwiches, wafers, candy, and olives were served by Miss Jennie C. Ritchie.

Mrs. F. E. Savage, Mrs. J. S. Humphreys, and Mrs. R. A. Terrell during the first part of the evening. Those who presided over the serving during the latter half were Mrs. Travis Shaw, Mrs. H. M. Cook, Mrs. T. B. McCarter, and Mrs. L. A. Osgood.

T. H. Rowan of Amarillo was in the city Saturday on business.

Miss Mary Carlisle returned Monday from her home in McKinney, where she was called due to the death of her father.

Among ex-students on the campus last week end were J. B. Speer, C. R. E. Weaver, Juanita Bagwell, Mr. and Mrs. Doc McVickers, Ruth Reed, Eppie Irons, and Mrs. O. J. Laas.

CAPITOL SENTIMENT

—AS REPORTED—

By United Press

By Gordon K. Shearer
United Press Staff Correspondent
Austin, Texas, Jan. 31.—(United Press)—Texas consumers are getting badly cheated, according to information laid before the legislature by V. A. Stovall, of the weights and measures division of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

When the consumer buys a package of bacon, he is likely to find that some of the strips have been removed. When he buys a box of berries, it is likely to be a short box. Stovall illustrated how dishonest berry shippers cheat on the boxes. They buy the standard box material, which would make a standard container. But before they put it together they take thin strips of the wood to a work shop, have a quarter of an inch or so cut off and short boxes result.

Grit was exhibited from a poise scale used in weighing cotton. The little handful of extra weight, Stovall showed, had cost the cotton farmers of one county thousands of dollars.

But it isn't always the heavy scale that's right. Stovall warned the farmer to beware of the overweight grain purchaser. A number of them operated that way in West Texas, he told a House committee.

When they found a farmer was making a practice of going to public weighers, these dealers would begin giving him a hundred pounds or so overweight at their granaries. The farmers would conclude that the public scales were wrong. At least he would become willing to take the buyers' weights which paid him more. But when he stopped going to the public weigher, then the buyer shifted his weights around the other way, got back all he formerly had given the farmer and more, too.

Sheets were exhibited from a "cheating scale," the manufacturer of which advertised a three per cent variation.

Present laws provide for prosecution, but Stovall says they are inadequate. One failure is the omission to punish giving of wrong weights unless done by the buyer or seller. For instance, a cotton weigher cannot be prosecuted because he merely furnishes a slip of the weight. He doesn't buy the cotton. It is bought by others on the weight he furnishes.

Short gasoline sales cost Texas $18,000,000 a year, another committee was told. It is proposed to remedy this by a state system of licensing gasoline pumps and prohibiting pumps that have an outlet back into the tank that can be used at the same time gas is being put into an automobile.

Governor Moody, not only is against elective commissions, but if he had his way, utility commissioners would not be eligible for any other office for two years after being commissioners.

This view, announced with considerable vehemence by the Governor, naturally has called attention to the existing state commission as a stepping stone to other offices.

Former Governor O. B. Colquit was a state railroad commissioner before he became Governor. U. S. Senator Earle B. Mayfield went to Washington from the railroad commission. W. M. W. Splawn was appointed on the rail board. He became President of the University of Texas.

No one has stepped from the State Highway Commission into another office. This is an appointive commission, but there is no bar to its members running for another place. R. S. Sterling, present chairman, has been frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor.

Who will get the three $10,000 a year places if an appointive utility commission is created already is causing discussion. Former Senator W. E. Woods, a lame duck of the last primary, is mentioned as a likelihood for one of the places. Clifford Stone, of Henderson, head of the gas utility section of the present railroad commission, would be a likely choice for one of the other places, especially if it is decided to remove gas utilities into the new commission. Both are lawyers. A technical man would seem to be the logical choice for the third member, if Governor Moody picks these two. Woods was Senate leader of the Governor's forces in the last legislature. Stone was one of Governor Moody's assistants when he was attorney general.

Proposal of J. Lewis Thompson, of Houston, to make ministers and priests ineligible to the governorship or legislature has caused much capital comment. A constitutional amendment would be necessary to carry it out. The first state constitution, Section 27, had such a prohibition. It said: "Ministers of the Gospel, being by their profession dedicated to God, and the care of the souls ought not to be diverted from the great duties of their functions, therefore no minister of the Gospel, or priest of any denomination whatsoever, shall be eligible to the legislature." The section was dropped in the Constitution of 1869.

Rev. Harper, of Mount Pleasant, author of the anti-evolution bill, says a serious attempt to bar ministers from holding office, would result in civil war. The minister of today, he says, is expected to be and ought to be in touch with affairs. He does not lose his citizenship by becoming a minister.

Court changes have been hard sledding with Texas legislatures. Rep. F. H. Prendergrast, of Marshall, pointed out the other night to a House committee that he was seeking judicial reforms in 1918 that he is still urging in 1929.

Faculty Members Give Recital to Large Audience

Home talent was featured in the lyceum program given in the auditorium of the main building last Tuesday evening by Mae Slack, pianist, and Herschel Coffee, violinist.

The program was representative of the best literature in piano and violin. A few of the numbers used by Mr. Coffee are in the repertoire of all concert violinists and are played very much. The program was well balanced; there was variety in the types of music used. Interest was kept up throughout the evening by decided contrast in the spirit of the compositions. Both artists showed brilliancy and discrimination in their interpretations.

Miss Slack and Mr. Coffee are members of the music faculty of W. T. S. T. C. Both are graduates of this institution and they have studied since their graduation here with Professor Grabill of Los Angeles, California.

The following program was rendered:

Ballade and Polonaise (Vieuxtemps)—Mr. Coffee.
Gavotte (Gluck-Brahms); Waltz Op. 70 No. 3 (Chopin); Hark! Hark! the Lark! (Schubert-Liszt)—Miss Slack.
Andante (Gluck); Liebesfreud (Kreisler); Liebesleid (Kreisler); Gavotte (Gluck)—Mr. Coffee.
Air de Ballet (Moskowski); Barcarolle (Rubinstein); From the Carnival (Grieg)—Miss Slack.
Variations on a Theme by Correlli (Tartini-Kreisler); On Wings of Song (Mendelssohn-Papini); Minuet (Zimbalist); Cradle Song (Brahms-Kramer)—Mr. Coffee.

ALMA SMITH BECOMES BRIDE OF EDD HOLMES

Word has been received here of the marriage of Miss Alma Smith to Edd Holmes in Plainview January 5.

Mrs. Holmes was a freshman here in 1926 and since that time has been teaching public speaking in the Sand Hill school. The groom is a stock farmer of Sand Hill where the young couple are making their home.

A sister of the bride, Alice Smith, is in school at the present time.

J. W. Fitzgerald is Appointed to Board of College Regents

J. W. Fitzgerald of Tyler was recently appointed to fill the place of M. O. Flowers on the State Board of Teachers Colleges Regents. Mr. Fitzgerald is a banker of Tyler.

Mr. Flowers, who was president of the board, resigned to take a legislative position. The new president of the board will be elected at an early date.

Two One-Act Plays To Be Feature of Theatre Thursday

Two one-act plays will be the feature of the seventh Children's Theatre program which will be given Thursday afternoon at three-thirty in the auditorium of the education building. "Humpty Dumpty" will be directed by Gordon Beck, and "King Dophetua and the Beggar Maid" will be under the supervision of Arless O'Keefe. Both directors are advanced speech students.

The two plays are such that will intrigue the interest of all people, both young and old, according to the opinion of C. W. Batchelder, general director of the Children's Theatre. These plays present unusual difficulties from the standpoint of stage management. But these difficulties are being worked out effectively by the directors.

The costumes are being designed and made by Flora Baker of the home economics department. Particular attention is being given to the period and styles represented. The Children's Theatre will have three more performances this year. The eighth performance will be "Jack, the Giant Killer." Novella Goodman will have charge of the next program, which will be given by the children of the Training School. Mr. Batchelder is now working on the manuscript for a dramatization of "Treasure Island" which performance will be the last one of the term.

Admission to these plays is 25c for those not holding season tickets.

Two Plays Given At Dramatic Club Meeting Thursday

Two plays, "About Face" and "Taxi" were presented at Dramatic Club meeting Thursday afternoon. Ione Ball and Ben Guill were the respective directors of the work.

The eternal triangle was the theme of "About Face" but it was different in that the two women concerned were generous to a high degree. Dalma Fry as May gave valuable advice to wives who do not keep up with their husbands. Other characters were Eva, played by Lulu Mae Irons, and Laura, played by Frances Croson.

"Taxi" was a delightful little dialogue in which Zella Mae Walser, as Mrs. Kimberly, and Edgar Pickett, as Mr. Kimberly, did some clever characterization as the estranged couple reunited in a taxi.

Supt. McIntosh Speaks at College Saturday Morning

Superintendent W. A. McIntosh of Amarillo Public Schools brought a message of good will to the faculty and student body of the College in chapel Tuesday.

Mr. McIntosh stated that he had watched the development of W. T. S. T. C. since 1913, a development which has changed from wooden shacks to some of the best equipped buildings in the state. He offered no unnecessary praise but said that as teachers the graduates compare favorably with the graduates of much larger institutions.

Rent Collection in Library Totals Thirty-Eight Books

Thirty-eight is the total number of worthwhile books now found in that section of the library known as the Rent Collection. This collection was begun about the middle of last year and due to the number of books has been enabled to increase the number of volumes at a pleasing rate.

Hattie M. Anderson recently gave "The White Monkey" to this collection and another donation by Mrs. L. A. Osgood was "Anthony Comstock." Other new books which were purchased with the rental money are: "Bridge of San Luis Rey," "The Father," "Hill Country," "Swan Song," "Trader Horn," "All Kneeling," "Nocturne," "The Battle of the Horizons," "The Old Ladies," and "The Children."

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL WILL BEGIN

COACH JONES SAYS PROSPECTS ARE FAVORABLE FOR LARGE NUMBER OF BANNER TEAMS.

Intramural basketball practices will start early this week according to Coach Mitchell Jones of the physical education department. Prospects for the contest are promising as nine teams have already entered. Although no definite schedule has been worked out yet all plans are going forward and announcements concerning this schedule are expected soon.

Mr. Jones desires that all men of the college who take part in this meet make arrangements with him at once. He promises to secure a place on some team for each man.

It will be remembered that fifteen teams participated for the honors last year. These honors were determined only after some seventy-one games had been played; when the Cousins Literary Society was victorious. Other teams winning places and honorable mention were: Out of State, Track Team and the Mavericks.

Amarillo Cast of Players Appears in "Facing Facts"

The Baptist Worker's Meeting held at the Baptist Church Tuesday was brought to a close that evening by the play "Facing Facts" which had as its cast fifteen members of the B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist Church of Amarillo.

The play treated the subject of tithing and was under the direction of Mr. Joe Riddle, educational director of the First Baptist Church.

Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide. In the strife of Truth with Falsehood, for the Good or Evil Side—Lowell.

"It is easy to smoke with a cigar holder?"

Prospects for the contest are promising as nine teams have already entered. Although no definite schedule has been worked out yet all plans are going forward and announcements concerning this schedule are expected soon.

Mr. Jones desires that all men of the college who take part in this meet make arrangements with him at once. He promises to secure a place on some team for each man.

It will be remembered that fifteen teams participated for the honors last year. These honors were determined only after some seventy-one games had been played; when the Cousins Literary Society was victorious. Other teams winning places and honorable mention were: Out of State, Track Team and the Mavericks.

Amarillo Cast of Players Appears in "Facing Facts"

The Baptist Worker's Meeting held at the Baptist Church Tuesday was brought to a close that evening by the play "Facing Facts" which had as its cast fifteen members of the B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist Church of Amarillo.

The play treated the subject of tithing and was under the direction of Mr. Joe Riddle, educational director of the First Baptist Church.

Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide. In the strife of Truth with Falsehood, for the Good or Evil Side.—Lowell.

"It is easy to smoke with a cigar holder?"

"Sure; it's a regular pipe."

J. Edward Witte returned Friday from Christoval where he has been the last two weeks taking treatments.

Don't Miss The First Installment Of "The Desperate Lover"

THE DESPERATE LOVER

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

ILLUSTRATED BY FRANK B. DRIEN

Palermo is like a night blossom which opens only with the first breath of evening. By day, it is parched and sleepy and stupid; by night, it is alive and joyous—the place itself becomes an al fresco paradise.

By day, those who can, sleep; by night, they awake and don their daintiest clothing, and Palermo is gay.

The terrace of the Hotel de l'Europe extends to the very verge of the promenade, and, night by night, it is crowded with men of all conditions and nations, who sit before little marble tables facing the sea. At one of these, so close to the promenade that the dresses of the passers-by almost touched them, two men were seated.

One was of an order and race easily to be distinguished by any quarter of the globe—an English country gentleman. He was tall and handsome, and young enough not to have outlived enthusiasm, for he was looking out upon the gay scene with keen interest. His features were well cut, his eyes were blue, and his bronze face was smooth, save for a slight, well-formed moustache. He wore a brown tweed coat and waistcoat, flannel trousers, a straw hat tilted over his eyes, and he was smoking a briar pipe.

His companion was of a different type. He was of medium height only, and thin; his complexion was sallow, and his eyes and hair were black. His features, though not altogether pleasing, were regular and almost classical in outline. His clothes displayed him to the worst possible advantage. He wore black trousers and a dark frock coat, tightly fitting, which accentuated the narrowness of his shoulders. The only relief to the somberness of his attire consisted in a white flower carefully fastened in his buttonhole.

They were only acquaintances, these two men; chance had brought them together for some evil purpose of her own. They had become for a while companions, albeit silent ones.

The Englishman was in far too good a humor with himself, the place, and his surroundings, to hold his peace for long. He exchanged his pipe for a Havana, and commenced to talk.

"It's very stupid of me, but, do you know, I've quite forgotten your name for the moment. I remember my cousin, Ciss Davenport, introducing us at Rome, and I knew you again directly I saw you. But I'm hanged if I can think of your name! I always had a precious bad memory."

The Sicilian looked none too well pleased at the implied request.

"I do not object to telling you my name," he said in a low tone, sunk almost to a whisper, "but you will pardon me if I make a request which may appear somewhat singular to you. I do not wish you to address me by it here, or to mention it. To be frank, there are reasons for wishing my presence in this neighborhood not to be known. You are a gentleman, and you will understand."

"Oh, perfectly," the Englishman answered him, in a tone of blank bewilderment.

My name is Leonardo di Mario-ni!"

"By Jove! of course it is!" the Englishman exclaimed. "I should have thought of it in a moment."

"You will not forget my request, and if you have occasion to address me, perhaps you will be so good as to do so by the name of 'Cortegi.' It is the name by which I am known here, and to which I have some right."

The Englishman nodded.

"All right. I'll remember. By the bye," he went on, "I had the pleasure of meeting your sister in Naples, I believe. She is engaged to marry Martin Briscoe, isn't she?"

The Sicilian's face darkened into a scowl; the thin lips were tightly compressed, and his eyes flashed with angry light.

"I was not aware of it," he answered haughtily.

There was a lull in the stream of promenaders.

The Englishman looked into the eyes of the most beautiful woman he had ever seen. A flood of silver moonlight lay across the Marina, glancing away across the dark blue waters of the bay, and the soft dazzling light gently touched her hair, and gleamed in her dark, sweet eyes. She was tall, and clad in white flowing draperies clinging softly around her slim, girlish figure, and giving to her appearance an inexpressible daintiness, as though they were indeed emblematic of the spotless purity of that fair young being. Was it the chastened light, or was there indeed something spiritual, something more than humanly beautiful in the delicate oval face—perfect in its outline, perfect in its faint coloring and stately poise? She was walking slowly, her every movement full of a distinctive and deliberate grace, and her head a little upturned, as though her thoughts were far away among the softly burning stars, rather than concerned with the fashionable and picturesque crowd which thronged around her. A remark from her companion, a girl of somewhat slighter stature and darker complexion, caused her to lower her eyes, and in doing so they fell upon the eager, impassioned gaze of the young Englishman.

Afterwards he was never ashamed to confess that that moment brought with it a peculiar lingering sweetness which never altogether died away. It was the birth of a new sensation, the most poignant of all sensations, although philosophers deny and materialists scoff at it. After all, there is something more than refined sensuality in love which has so sudden a dawning; there is a certain innate spirituality which sublimates and purifies it, so that the flame burns softly but brightly still through joy and grief, mocking at satiety, surviving the sorrow of gray hairs, triumphing over the desolation of old age, and sweetening the passage to the grave. He was a headstrong, chivalrous young man, passionate, loyal, and faithful, among all his faults. That first love of his never grew cold, never lessened. It lasted forever. For some men it is not possible to give the better part of themselves up to the worship of a pure woman; selfishness forbids it. But this young Englishman who sat there spellbound, absorbed in the consciousness of this new and sweet emotion, was not one of these.

Suddenly she withdrew her eyes with a faint, conscious blush, and as she did so she saw for the first time the Sicilian. Her whole aspect swiftly changed. A terrified shudder swept across her features, and her lips parted with fear.

"Who is she?" the Englishman asked abruptly.

"I fear that I do not quite understand you," he said quietly, although his voice and limbs were trembling with passion; "to whom do you allude?"

"The girl in white who passed just now. You knew her! Tell me her name!"

"Why should I?"

"I wish to know it."

"Possibly. But that is no reason why I should tell it to you. That lady is a friend of mine, certainly, but it is not the custom in my country, however it may be in yours, to bandy a lady's name about in a public place."

At the door of the hotel the Englishman paused for a moment, and then, instead of joining the stream of promenaders, he entered and slowly ascended the broad marble staircase toward his room. Just as he reached the first landing, however, he felt a light touch on his arm, and a guttural voice in his ear. He turned sharply round, and found before him one of the waiters—the one who had served him with his coffee outside.

"Well! what do you want?" he asked.

The man answered in a low tone, with his eyes glancing suspiciously around all the time.

"The Signor was inquiring the name of the lady who passed by," he said apologetically.

"Well?"

"I can tell it to the Signor."

"Look sharp then!"

"The Signor is generous," he remarked, with a cunning look. "I have risked my place by leaving the terrace without permission to bring him this news, and I am poor—very, very poor!" he added, with a sudden drop in his voice which resembled a whine.

The Englishman threw a piece of gold into the brown, greedy palm. The Signor is noble. The beautiful lady's name is Signorina Adrienne Cartuccio."

"The singer?"

"The same, Signor. The divine singer."

"Ah!"

The Englishman turned toward the wide, open window, and gazed steadfastly at the place in the crowd where she had vanished.

On the brow of the Hill Fiolesse, at a sharp angle in the white dusty road, a man and woman stood talking. On one side of them was a grove of flowering magnolias, and on the other a high, closely-trimmed hedge skirted the grounds of the Villa Fiolesse. There was not another soul in sight, but, as though the place were not secure enough from interruption, the girl, every now and then, glanced half-fearfully around her, and more than once paused in the middle of a sentence to listen. At last her fears escaped from her lips.

"Leonardo, I wish that you had not come!" she cried. "What is the good of it? I shall have no rest till I know that you are beyond the sea again."

"Beyond the seas, while my heart is chained forever here, Margharita!" he answered. "Ah! I have tried, and I know the bitterness of it. You cannot tell what exile has been like to me. I could bear it no longer. Tell me, child! I watched you climb this hill together. You looked back and saw me, and waited. Did she see me, too? Quick! answer me! I will know! She saw me on the Marina. Did she know that I was following her?"

"I think she saw you. She said nothing when I lingered behind. It was as though she knew."

The Sicilian clasped his hands, and looked away over the sea. The moonlight fell upon his weary pallid face, and glistened in his dark sad eyes. He spoke more to himself than her.

"She knew! And yet she would not wait to speak a single word to me! Ah! it is cruel! If only she could know how night by night, in those far-distant countries, I have lain on the mountain tops, and wandered through the valleys, thinking and dreaming of her—always of her! It has been an evil time with me, my sister, a time of dreary days and sleepless nights. And this is the end of it! My heart is faint and sick with longing, and I hastened here before it should break. I must see her Margharita! Let us hasten on to the villa."

She laid her hand upon his arm. Her eyes were soft with coming tears.

"Leonardo, listen," she cried. "It is best to tell you. She will not see you. She is quite firm. She is angry with you for coming."

"Angry with me! Angry because I love her, so that I risk my life just to see her, to hear her speak! Ah! but that is cruel! Let me go in and speak to her! Let me plead with her in my own fashion!"

She shook her head.

"Leonardo, the truth is best," she said softly. "Adrienne does not love you. She is quite determined not to see you again. Even I, pleading with tears in my eyes, could not persuade her. She has locked herself in her room while she prepares for the concert. You could not see her unless you forced yourself upon her, and that would not do."

"No, I would not do that," he answered wearily. "Margharita, there is a question; I must ask it, though the answer kill me. Is there—any one else?"

She shook her head.

"There is no one else, Leonardo, yet. But what matter is that, since it cannot be you? Some day it will come. All that a sister could do I have done. She pities you, Leonardo, but she does not love you. She never will!"

He moved from the open space, where the moonlight fell upon his marble face, to the shadow of the magnolia grove. He stood there quite silent for a moment. Then he spoke in a strained, hard voice, which she scarcely recognized.

"Margharita, you have done your best for me. You do not know what a man's love is, or you would not wonder that I suffer so much. Yet, if it must be, it must. I will give her up. I will go back to my exile and forget her. Yet since I am here, grant me a last favor. Let me see her to say farewell."

She looked up at him in distress.

"Leonardo, how can I? She has given orders that under no circumstances whatever are you to be admitted."

"But to say farewell!"

"She would not believe it. It has been so before, Leonardo, and then you have been passionate, and pleaded your cause all over again. I have promised that I will never ask her to see you again."

"Then let me see her without asking. You can find an opportunity, if you will. For my sake, Margharita!"

She laid her troubled, tear-stained face upon his shoulder.

"It is wrong of me, Leonardo. Yet if you will promise me to say farewell, and farewell only—"

"Be it so! I promise!"

"Well, then, each night we have walked past the Marina, and home by the mountain road. It is a long way round and it is lonely; but we have Pietro with us, and on these moon-light nights the view is like fairyland."

"And will you come that way home tonight, after the concert?"

"Yes."

"It is good."

X-RAY BECOMES "EGGS RAY"

Can the X-ray control sex? Can it accelerate growth? These are questions which poultry growers and farmers throughout the country are asking themselves as a result of the series of scientific experiments carried out by Paul R. Hadley, a business man of Fanwood, N. J., who is working with X-ray specialists in hatching hen's eggs with the aid of the mysterious Roentgen light.

He claims to have induced 100 per cent female hatchings by X-raying the eggs. More than that, by giving other eggs a milder dose of the ray, he has stimulated in hatchings of both sexes a rate of growth exceeding by 40 per cent the growth of chicks from unirradiated eggs.

State experimental stations in New Jersey and in Canada expect to push further experiments in the Hadley method this winter. Mr. Hadley himself holds basic patents, he says, on the only machine that can reduce the cost of X-raying eggs to a practical commercial basis, but he will not put the machine on the market until outside official experiments have substantiated his claims for X-rayed eggs. For the present, he is simply selling a limited number of chicks from eggs which have been X-rayed to stimulate growth.

The things we don't know are the things that worry us the most.

NURSES know, and doctors have declared there's nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

They May Call You

When the firemen call, dressed for action, it is too late to think of insurance. The loss may be large—or the loss may be small—but a loss nevertheless unless you have your home and personal property well insured. Winter is the season of the year when fire losses are greatest. Putting off taking out a fire insurance policy is a gamble which no one can afford. Let us explain the economy which may be enjoyed in various kinds of policies.

"No, I would not do that," he answered wearily. "Margharita, there is a question; I must ask it, though the answer kill me. Is there—any one else?"

She shook her head.

"There is no one else, Leonardo, yet. But what matter is that, since it cannot be you? Some day it will come. All that a sister could do I have done. She pities you, Leonardo, but she does not love you. She never will!"

He moved from the open space, where the moonlight fell upon his marble face, to the shadow of the magnolia grove. He stood there quite silent for a moment. Then he spoke in a strained, hard voice, which she scarcely recognized.

"Margharita, you have done your best for me. You do not know what a man's love is, or you would not wonder that I suffer so much. Yet, if it must be, it must. I will give her up. I will go back to my exile and forget her. Yet since I am here, grant me a last favor. Let me see her to say farewell."

She looked up at him in distress.

"Leonardo, how can I? She has given orders that under no circumstances whatever are you to be admitted."

"But to say farewell!"

"She would not believe it. It has been so before, Leonardo, and then you have been passionate, and pleaded your cause all over again. I have promised that I will never ask her to see you again."

"Then let me see her without asking. You can find an opportunity, if you will. For my sake, Margharita!"

She laid her troubled, tear-stained face upon his shoulder.

"It is wrong of me, Leonardo. Yet if you will promise me to say farewell, and farewell only—"

"Be it so! I promise!"

"Well, then, each night we have walked past the Marina, and home by the mountain road. It is a long way round and it is lonely; but we have Pietro with us, and on these moon-light nights the view is like fairyland."

"And will you come that way home tonight, after the concert?"

"Yes."

"It is good."

X-RAY BECOMES "EGGS RAY"

Can the X-ray control sex? Can it accelerate growth? These are questions which poultry growers and farmers throughout the country are asking themselves as a result of the series of scientific experiments carried out by Paul R. Hadley, a business man of Fanwood, N. J., who is working with X-ray specialists in hatching hen's eggs with the aid of the mysterious Roentgen light.

He claims to have induced 100 per cent female hatchlings by X-raying the eggs. More than that, by giving other eggs a milder dose of the ray, he has stimulated in hatchlings of both sexes a rate of growth exceeding by 40 per cent the growth of chicks from unirradiated eggs.

State experimental stations in New Jersey and in Canada expect to push further experiments in the Hadley method this winter. Mr. Hadley himself holds basic patents, he says, on the only machine that can reduce the cost of X-raying eggs to a practical commercial basis, but he will not put the machine on the market until outside official experiments have substantiated his claims for X-rayed eggs. For the present, he is simply selling a limited number of chicks from eggs which have been X-rayed to stimulate growth.

The things we don't know are the things that worry us the most.

NURSES know, and doctors have declared there's nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

They May Call You

When the firemen call, dressed for action, it is too late to think of insurance. The loss may be large—or the loss may be small—but a loss nevertheless unless you have your home and personal property well insured. Winter is the season of the year when fire losses are greatest. Putting off taking out a fire insurance policy is a gamble which no one can afford. Let us explain the economy which may be enjoyed in various kinds of policies.

best customer for our fruits and vegetables, and that carload after carload of celery, apples, potatoes, etc., are shipped into that state from Colorado?

And do you know that for a warm, winter climate it is unequalled in the United States, and that Brownsville, Tex., is the farthest southern point in the United States with the single exception of Key West, Florida?

Do you know that the hotels in Texas are unusually good, the rates unusually cheap and the service excellent. And Texas is full of the best fellows in the world. They are big people, a generous people, have plenty of money and love to spend it in a hospitality that is as broad as her domain. And Texas lies a thousand miles north and south, a thousand miles east and west from extreme points?

Do you know that vessels sail almost daily from Houston, Galveston, Brownsville, Port Arthur and Corpus Christi to all points in the world, and that these ports are our nearest seaports?

Now, let's reciprocate and be just as good to Texas as Texas is to us. There are a world of the finest, warmest, winter resorts on this continent in Texas: Corpus Christi, San Antonio, Port Arthur, Galveston, Houston, Brownsville, Austin, Fort Worth and Dallas, and all up and down that wondrous citrus and tropical valley of the Rio Grande.

If you are thinking of going to a warmer climate this winter, run down and pay Texas a visit, don't let them be more generous to us than we are to them.

Texas has everything down there that we haven't up here, and we have everything up here they haven't down there. Texas is nearer us than any other warm, winter resort.

Let's be just as hospitable and generous to them as they are and have been to us for years.

PEOPLE WILL TALK

If you listen to all that is said as you go:

You may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow.

You'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stew.

For meddlesome tongues must have something to do—

And people will talk.

If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed.

That your humble position is only assumed.

You're a wolf in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool.

But don't get excited—keep perfectly cool—

For people will talk.

And then if you show the least boldness of heart,

Or a slight inclination to take your own part,

They will call you an upstart, conceited and vain.

But keep straight ahead—don't stop to explain—

For people will talk.

If threadbare your dress and old-fashioned your hat—

Someone will surely take notice of that—

And hint rather strong that you can't pay your way:

But don't get excited, whatever they say—

For people will talk.

If you dress in fashion, don't think to escape,

For they criticize them in a different shape—

You're ahead of your means, or your tailor's unpaid;

But mind your own business—there naught to be made—

For people will talk.

Now the best way to do is to do as you please,

For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease.

Of course if you meet with all sorts of abuse;

But don't think to stop them—it's not any use—

For people will talk.

ARTIFICIAL COTTON

England's effort to grow its own supply of cotton and free itself from the necessity of buying from American planters have been unremitting. Everywhere in the world-wide empire, where climate approximated that of the Southern States, cotton has been planted. Some production has been attained in Egypt and India. But the fiber is of grade inferior to the American, and there has never been enough grown to seriously affect the monopoly of the American product for high grade spinning. Now the story is of a substitute for cotton—a spinnable fiber from another plant which can be grown in the British Isles. Dispatches from Manchester report that experimental plantings of this crop this year will provide some 4,000,000 pounds for spinning, at a cost to the mills not to exceed 12 cents a pound.

There is nothing in the news that suggests that American cotton growers will have to go out of business. The search for textile fibers has been wide-spread and intense, but nothing has been found that can take the place of cotton. Of course, if the new fiber developed in England is successful, if it meets the requirements of spinners, and if it can be produced at 12 cents a pound, American cotton growers interests will suffer. American cotton can not be had in England for less than 20 cents a pound—more often than not the price exceeds this figure. Moreover, if the new fiber is successful, and can be grown in England, it can be grown anywhere in the world. If all this comes to pass the American cotton grower will find cotton too cheap to grow on valuable land.

County Teachers
Will Meet Saturday
at Palo Duro School

Members of the Randall County Teachers' Association will meet Saturday at the Palo Duro school, east of Canyon for its regular bi-monthly meeting, according to Judge B. F. Fronabarger, county superintendent.

The teachers will prepare luncheon at the school and spend most of the day participating in the program. Speakers from the West Texas State Teachers College and from other schools in the Panhandle are on the program.

DOES CRIME PAY

In an article in the Baltimore Sun, James M. Hepbron disputes the statement that crime does not pay. "In that city (a typical American city) there were 10,000 serious crimes reported to the police," Mr. Hepbron says, "and in the final analysis only 97 people went to prison. If crime doesn't pay, who then gets the almost unthinkable sum of from ten to sixteen billions which is said to be the yearly toll of crime in this country, a sum which is one-seventh of our total earnings?"

Statistics such as these show graphically the force of American law enforcement. We have more laws than any other country in the world, more professional reformers, more people with cures for everything that ails or is said to ail the human race. And crime has increased in direct proportion to the increase in laws enacted. It would hardly be an exaggeration to say that every piece of criminal legislation of the "freak" type, such as anti-pistol enactments and similar laws infringing on personal liberties, means a continually increasing number of law breakers.

Mr. Hepbron states that in Sing Sing, according to Warden Lawes of that penitentiary, "the average time between commitment to the death house and execution is almost a year. What a commentary on the American system of administering justice, in contrast to that of England, where from the time of trial, including every known appeal, only about six weeks elapse before execution."

A fact such as this requires no comment.

COLOR OF LAMP SHADES
IMPORTANT IN LIGHTING

The color of lamp shades is very important to any woman who seeks the best home lighting. Ethel Wan Ressel Chantler, who has made a profession of lamp shades, tells some of the secrets of her trade.

"There are many rooms," she says, "which look comfortable and beautiful in the day time and yet are cheerless and cold at night; all because the lights are wrong—in the wrong place or in the wrong color."

"Once my home had its crop of household glooms—heavy silk and dark-colored paper shade creations. But when I learned about good lighting, out they went."

"Good lighting does not mean a great blaze of light, but just the right amount properly diffused. A living room needs quiet shadows. Working or reading eyes need plenty of light well diffused. It's mainly a matter of enough lamps, correctly placed and shaded."

"The best artificial light is that which most nearly resembles sunlight filtering through deep cream curtains. Cold colors—blue, deep purple and green—are not for lamp shades."

Geo. F. Simmons
Will Appear Here
In Lyceum Feb. 11

George Finlay Simmons in his own strange story of adventure entitled "Sinbad of science and the Sea" is to be given in the college auditorium February 11 as the third lyceum of the year.

This promises to be one of the outstanding dates on the W. T. calendar, judging from all press notices and the remarks made by Wallace R. Clark. As a guarantee of the worth of this number it may be said that the National Geographic Magazine gave seventy-five pages of its July, 1927 number to this story.

It is much more than a lecture—it is an illustrated travelogue, the pictures themselves being exceptionally rare. It is, according to comments made by previous audiences, "a striking example that truth is stranger than fiction—of wooden ships and men of iron, and dead men's tales—of princes and potentates, queer islanders and thirsty beachcombers—told by an accomplished story teller and scientist of note, all illustrated with motion pictures and many beautiful colored slides."

Seniors Present
Stuart H. Condon
With Sweater

Stuart H. Condon, sponsor of the senior class of '29 was presented with a class sweater at the chapel hour Tuesday. While members of the class stood in respectful silence, T. H. McDonald, president, fittingly presented the appropriate gift which Mr. Condon received with expressions of gratitude.

This senior class is following a precedent set by several previous classes in showing appreciation for time and effort spent on class activities on the part of the sponsor.

"Once my home had its crop of household glooms—heavy silk and dark-colored paper shade creations. But when I learned about good lighting, out they went.

"Good lighting does not mean a great blaze of light, but just the right amount properly diffused. A living room needs quiet shadows. Working or reading eyes need plenty of light well diffused. It's mainly a matter of enough lamps, correctly placed and shaded.

"The best artificial light is that which most nearly resembles sunlight filtering through deep cream curtains. Cold colors—blue, deep purple and green—are not for lamp shades."

County Teachers
Will Meet Saturday
at Palo Duro School

Members of the Randall County Teachers' Association will meet Saturday at the Palo Duro school, east of Canyon for its regular bi-monthly meeting, according to Judge B. F. Fronabarger, county superintendent.

The teachers will prepare luncheon at the school and spend most of the day participating in the program. Speakers from the West Texas State Teachers College and from other schools in the Panhandle are on the program.

DOES CRIME PAY

In an article in the Baltimore Sun, James M. Hepbron disputes the statement that crime does not pay. "In that city (a 'typical American city') there were 10,000 serious crimes reported to the police," Mr. Hepbron says, "and in the final analysis only 97 people went to prison. If crime doesn't pay, who then gets the almost unthinkable sum of from ten to sixteen billions which is said to be the yearly toll of crime in this country, a sum which is one-seventh of our total earnings?"

Statistics such as these show graphically the force of American law enforcement. We have more laws than any other country in the world, more professional reformers, more people with cures for everything that ails or is said to ail the human race. And crime has increased in direct proportion to the increase in laws enacted. It would hardly be an exaggeration to say that every piece of criminal legislation of the "freak" type, such as anti-pistol enactments and similar laws infringing on personal liberties, means a continually increasing number of law breakers.

Mr. Hepbron states that in Sing Sing, according to Warden Lawes of that penitentiary, "the average time between commitment to the death house and execution is almost a year. What a commentary on the American system of administering justice, in contrast to that of England, where from the time of trial, including every known appeal, only about six weeks elapse before execution."

A fact such as this requires no comment.

COLOR OF LAMP SHADES
IMPORTANT IN LIGHTING

The color of lamp shades is very important to any woman who seeks the best home lighting. Ethel Wan Ressel Chantler, who has made a profession of lamp shades, tells some of the secrets of her trade.

"There are many rooms," she says, "which look comfortable and beautiful in the day time and yet are cheerless and cold at night; all because the lights are wrong—in the wrong place or in the wrong color.

"Once my home had its crop of household glooms—heavy silk and dark-colored paper shade creations. But when I learned about good lighting, out they went.

"Good lighting does not mean a great blaze of light, but just the right amount properly diffused. A living room needs quiet shadows. Working or reading eyes need plenty of light well diffused. It's mainly a matter of enough lamps, correctly placed and shaded.

"The best artificial light is that which most nearly resembles sunlight filtering through deep cream curtains. Cold colors—blue, deep purple and green—are not for lamp shades."

Geo. F. Simmons
Will Appear Here
In Lyceum Feb. 11

George Finlay Simmons in his own strange story of adventure entitled "Sinbads of science and the Sea" is to be given in the college auditorium February 11 as the third lyceum of the year.

This promises to be one of the outstanding dates on the W. T. calendar, judging from all press notices and the remarks made by Wallace R. Clark. As a guarantee of the worth of this number it may be said that the National Geographic Magazine gave seventy-five pages of its July, 1927 number to this story.

It is much more than a lecture—it is an illustrated travelogue, the pictures themselves being exceptionally rare. It is, according to comments made by previous audiences, "a striking example that truth is stranger than fiction—of wooden ships and men of iron, and dead men's tales—of princes and potentates, queer islanders and thirsty beachcombers—told by an accomplished story teller and scientist of note, all illustrated with motion pictures and many beautiful colored slides."

Seniors Present
Stuart H. Condon
With Sweater

Stuart H. Condon, sponsor of the senior class of '29 was presented with a class sweater at the chapel hour Tuesday. While members of the class stood in respectful silence, T. H. McDonald, president, fittingly presented the appropriate gift which Mr. Condon received with expressions of gratitude.

This senior class is following a precedent set by several previous classes in showing appreciation for time and effort spent on class activities on the part of the sponsor.
